The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce here, which entertains apprehensions about the maintenance of peace and order in Peking, is reported to have applied to the government for the postponement of General Wang Huai-ching's departure for the fighting front. The Presidental Mandate dated September 20, however, appoints General Nieh Hsien-tan, Commander of Gendarmes, as the successor of General Wang Huai-ching, in addition to his present post.

Paul Monroe Here On Educational Mission

Will Leave For Manila Tomorrow After Surveying Facilities For American Children

Dr. Paul Monroe, director of the International Institute, Teachers College, N. Y. educational expert and well-known in China, who is in the Far East at this time for two-fold purpose of surveying the educational facilities available for American children in the Orient, and to make recommendations and report on the uses to which the American Returned Boxer Indemnity to be remitted to China soon should be put, arrived in Shanghai Monday and is leaving for Manila on the President Pierce tomorrow.

In connection with Dr. Monroe's investigation of the education of American children in the Far East, he is reporting to a Foundation in America which is interested in the question and may possibly tender financial aid where the institution is particularly worthy. Besides, Dr. Monroe stated, it is hoped that when the situation with regard to the lack of funds for educational puposes is presented to the proper persons at home, the American Congress may be persuaded to pass an act entitling American schools abroad to the same support which the local government gives the schools at home. It should be remembered, however, on the other hand, that while American schools may be entitled to financial support from the home government, the tuition fees paid abroad do not total as much as the school taxes at home.

Foundations, such as the Rockefeller Foundation and others of similiar prestige and colossal financial structure, may help worthy schools and educational institutions to some extent. However, with more than 200 schools worthy of some financial support and all situated in communities of far less wealth than Shanghai where the American school is not self-supporting, it is not likely that a foundation could support the entire 200, or be called upon to do so.

In connection with the Boxer remission D/. Monroe discussed the personnel of the Sino-American Joint Commission for the Administration of the American Returned Boxer Indemnity, just appointed.

There are nine Chinese and five American members to the Commission including the following: Dr. W. W. Yen, premier of China; Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dr. Sao-ke Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister to the United States; Dr. Y. T. Tsur, prominent banker and former head of Tsing Hua College; Dr. P. W. Kuo, president, Southeastern University; Dr. Po-ling Chang, president, Nankai University, Tientsin; Dr. Mo Lin Chiang, vice-chancellor, National University, Peking; Dr. Fan Yuan-lien, head of the National Normal University, Peking; former cabinet minister; Dr. Huan Yen-pen, of Shanghai, head of Kiangsu Educational Association. The American members of the Commission are: Dr. Paul Monroe; Professor John Dewey, of Columbia University; Mr. Roger Green, secretary of the China Medical Board; Mr. C. R. Bennett, president of the International Banking Corporation in Peking; Mr. John E. Baker, technical expert in the Ministry of Communications.

None of these men are ex-officio. The board is self-perpetuating and at the third annual meeting the members will

The Men In The S.V.C.

For practically three weeks several hundred foreign business men of Shanghai have been on the job guarding the Shanghai foreign areas as members of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps. While the rest of Shanghai has been going about its affairs more or less undisturbed by the wars and rumors of wars or even by the sounds of actual firing only a few miles away the S. V. C. has been strictly on the job, doing guard duty or standing in reserve ready for duty should occasion arise.

The S.V.C. is made up of the manhood of Shanghai—the men who manage the business offices—who conduct the professional work—who keep the wheels of industry and affairs moving. They are men just like the rest of us, except that for the time being, they are considering public welfare and safety of greater importance than their private affairs. Many important business and professional offices in the city have practically been forced to close up shop because of the fact that all of the men are in the S.V.C.

It hasn't been necessary as yet for every able-bodied foreigner in Shanghai to join the S.V.C. We hope it may never be necessary for every foreigner in the city to join the ranks of the S. V. C. Such things have happened however in China before but that was many years ago. Apparently the Chinese leaders on both sides are doing everything possible to avoid foreign complications and we must respect their forbearance because the presence of foreigners in the fighting area must be terribly embarrassing at times to the military commanders in their operations.

But to get back to the foreigners and the S. V. C., there still must be a considerable number of able-bodied men in the Settlements who could join the Volunteers without making any great sacrifices either personally or in their business or professional work. These men should realise their obligations and accept their share of the common burden. As for the rest of the foreign population which is prevented from joining the defense units because of private duties which would suffer in case they were neglected or for other reasons, we must ask forbearance on behalf of those who are serving the community in a very important way. Men who are serving the public and neglecting their businesses and professions should not be made to suffer because of unfair competition on the part of those who are not actually giving their time to the protection of the Settlements. Shanghai has a fine reputation for its good sportsmanship and here's an opportunity for all of us to live up to our good name! Here's an opportunity for all of us to do honor in very substantial way to those who are considering the public welfare of greater importance than their private affairs!

ROUTED COLONEL DISCARDS HIS GEAR AT LIUHO

Chekiang Offers To Return Uniform If He Call For Same

BY D. J. LEWIS

Lootien, September 23rd, 7.00 p.m.—During the fighting last night Kiangsu troops which attacked in force were severely repulsed by heavy Chekiang machine gun fire. One Kiangsu officer, Col. Wang Kai-ching of the 44th regiment of Fukien troops belonging to the division commanded by Gen. Chow Ying-jen was apparently taken by surprise since the Chekiang forces have his complete gear, including uniform which they claim they will be glad to return to the Colonel if he will all in person for same.

The Kiangsu left wing on this front is apparently much weaker than the Kiangsu right wing, there being considerable more troops in evidence on the right wing.

Red Cross officials state that owing to the close proximity of the front line trenches it has been exceedingly difficult to make arrangements to collect the dead for burial that have fallen in the recent Kiangsu attacks. It is

Nanking Secret Service Scores Another Coup By Wrecking Two Big Bridges

Steel Girders Smashed And Twisted And Concrete Side Walls Pulverised At Two Places Along Railway Within Two Hours

BY TALBOT PATRICK

The Kiangsu military intelligence or secret service scored another coup against the army of the former Tuchun of Chekiang yesterday when they dynamited in the space of less than two hours two big bridges on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway line just this side of Kashing.

Unlike the amateurish attempt a number of days ago at a small bridge near Lunghua, the two jobs were done in expert fashion. Reports from investigators were that the steel girders of the two bridges had been smashed and twisted by the force of the explosions and cast down into the waters of the creeks beneath. The charge of the explosives used was so great that concrete of the side walls of the bridges was said to have been pulverised.

One bridge was blown at 10:30 in the morning and the other nearly two hours later in a supposed attempt to isolate a quantity of rolling stock on the tracks between the two. Some cars were said to be stuck there, but not a large quantity.

Two crews of railway repair men and bridge builders were to be set to work as soon as possible replacing the wrecked structures, but it was estimated that the work could not be completed in less than a week and would probably take several weeks. There is believed to be some possibly of erecting temporary crossings, however. The two crossings are, respectively, about a mile and two miles this side of Kashing.

HANKOW RECRUITS HERE

In addition to these two breaks in the line, the Chekiang forces were reported to have cut the railway line beyond Kashing, which they are making a troop concentration center as soldiers come back from the Ishing front. Some soldiers came to Shanghai on a train which made a vain attempt yesterday morning to go to Hangchow and hundreds of others are reaching the arsenal vicinity by coming through creeks and canals to the Whangpoo and down it in junks.

After a warm start at about 6 o'clock Monday night, firing on the Huangtu sector soon lessened to a light exchange of shots through the night and yesterday. Some fighting was reported from the vicinity of Chingpu and there are indications that more activity than we have seen in this sector to date may soon develop. At Liuho, on the other flank, a "hush-hush" veil has been spread about Chekiang activities which may also be taken as portent of interesting events in the near future.

An unusual development in the Chekiang search for men to swell the ranks of the army was found yesterday in a group of a score of men being sent to the front. They said they had been recruited in Hankow for the Chekiang army and had come down river by boat as civil passengers. One of the lot, was an under-sized boy about 15 years old who was refused because of his size and left behind weeping while his companions went to the colors.

SOLDIERS MINUS UNIFORM

The other members of the group were distinguished on their way only by arm bands of the type worn by the Chekiang soldiers. This was similar to the case of fifty recruits sent up from Chapei to Nanziang early yesterday morning, who had no uniforms at all. It was supposed they would be outfitted at Nanziang or one of the other towns where some stores of uniforms have been accumulated.

Other than these recruits, no reinforcements were sent up yesterday and no ammunition was sent to the front. Less than a dozen wounded came back to Shanghai, of whom one was an acting station master from Huangtu. This poor chap, Li Taung An, got a rifle bullet through the leg when he carelessly stopped for a time at the edge

Asquith's Attitude, On Russ Treaty Dashes London Hope

(Reuter's Service)

London, Sept. 22.—Mr. Asquith's letter to a correspondent in which he condemns the Russian Treaty has dashed the hopes of Government circles that the Liberals would tacitly support the existing text of the Anglo-Russian Treaty while seeking to amend unacceptable provisions; but no representative Liberals interviewed today believed that the situation would result in an immediate general election.

The Liberals hope that the Government will revise or elaborate their plan of the Russian settlement before the issue reaches a crucial stage in the House of Commons. It is suggested that the Government resume the Anglo-Soviet negotiations as a solution of the impasse.

Two Commandants Of Chekiang Surrender At Kiangsu Raid

Nanking Admits Casualties Are High On Huangtu-Liuho Front

(Eastern News Agency)

Nanking, September 21, (by mail.)—Today, the Tuchun's Office here announces that on the morning of the 19th instant, the Kiangsu troops made a raid on the Chekiang troops in the sector of Huangtu and surrounded the rear of the enemy at their left wing, with the result that one regimental commander and one battalion commandant have surrendered to the Kiangsu forces.

In their recent engagements with the Chekiang troops in the sectors of Huangtu and Liuho, the Kiangsu forces are reported to have suffered a large number of casualties and as their force in the above sectors has thus been considerable weakened, re-inforcements are daily being despatched there from Soochow.

But, owing to shortage of military trains, the present traffic between Nanking and Quinsan is inadequate to the needs, the Kiangsu troops are now using trains of the Tientsin-Pukow and Peking-Mukden Railways. The Eastern News Agency's correspondent witnessed 16 waggons, belonging to the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, and 2 waggons, belonging to the Peking-Mukden Railway, at Soochow station. It is learnt on good authority that as soon as the military force of the Kiangsu troops is fully replenished and reinforced, General Chi Hsieh-yuan will, it has been decided, start a general attack upon the Chekiang troops along the whole line from Chingpu to Liuho with the ultimate object of driving the Chekiang troops off the sectors to the east of the Taihu Lake. It is generally expected, therefore, that there will be severe fighting in the above sectors at no distant date.

ZANNI EXPECTED HERE TODAY; WAR MAY STOP HIM

Argentine Agent Asks Him To Remain In Hongkong Following Lu's Letter

Major Zanni, the Argentine world airman, is expected here today, but the local war may prevent him from coming at the eleventh hour. He was due in Foochow yesterday and was expected to hop off for the Kiangwan landing field today.

In a letter addressed to the Argentine diplomatic agent at Shanghai, Mr. A. Dal Carril, General Lu Yung-hsiang, in command of the Chekiang-Shanghai forces, made a request to postpone the flight to Shanghai in view of the local clash. Mr. Carril, however, contends that since Major Zanni is landing on the Whangpoo in a hydroplane, the delay is needless. It is understood that he is framing a reply to General Lu to this effect.

Although Mr. Carril has wired to Major Zanni to ask him to wait for further advice, it is possible that the message might have failed to reach him in Hongkong as the Argentine flier has never before stopped more than one day in any of the landing places.

Tokio, Sept. 23.—If sufficient public subscriptions are forthcoming, for which purpose a publicity campaign is being instituted, the Imperial Civilian Aviation Association announces that it will organise a world-flight to London in 1925 by civilian and military aviators.

SHANGHAI-HANGCHOW RAILWAY CUT; KIANGSU BLOWS UP TWO BRIDGES

Nanking Spies Dynamite Two Bridges This Side Of Kashing; Tsingpu Stands Heavy Bombarding; Lull On Huangtu Front; Serious Battle At Liuho Expected; Cruiser Haichow Returns

Yesterday' developments in the war situation:

Kiangsu emissaries dynamited two bridges on this side of Kashing yesterday, resulting in the suspension of traffic above Kashan. The bridges, both of small length are located one and two miles respectively from Kashing and are being repaired by engineers of railway line and the Chekiang army.

Huangtu was quiet throughout the day.

On the Liuho front, Chekiang troops are consolidating their position in preparation for a big fight while Kiangsu forces are still entrenched in the northwest of the town.

The cruiser Haichow, biggest warcraft of General Lu's Navy, which with four smaller vensels, cleared out of Shanghai waters on Sunday after receiving, it is said, $160,000 from Nanking, returned to Woosung on Monday night. Her attitude is puzzling the local military authorities.

The Nantao Bund above the Kiangnan Arsenal was almost blocked with junks, coming down with General Lu's loyal troops.

Local Committees have been named by Chinese organisations to hasten internal peace and devise means of relieving the distressed.

Peculiar Movements Of The Haichow

The peculiar movements of the Chinese cruiser Haichow, said to be the best warcraft in the Chinese Navy aroused considerable speculation last night. At last reports the boat was said to be anchored near the mouth of the Yangtsze River outside of Woosung.

On Sunday the ship left its moorings at Woosung and steamed up the Yangtsze and anchored near the fleet controlled by General Chi Hsieh-yuan stationed opposite the village of Liuho. Then after a few hours the boat left Chi's fleet and came back to Woosung and then a little later started in the direction of the sea. From a report printed in the papers yesterday the Haichow and four other ships formerly loyal to General Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang had deserted and joined the Nanking Navy. There was still another report in circulation regarding dissension on board the Haichow between the officers and men regarding the ultimate destination of the boat. Now apparently neither side knows what has happened.

It was reported yesterday that the foreign naval authorities had issued advices to the rival naval commanders in the Shanghai area that any Chinese warcraft leaving the Shanghai harbor would not be permitted to return and any on the outside entering the harbor would not be permitted to leave. This order was issued, according to report, in order to prevent a naval engagement in the vicinity of the Shanghai Bund or to prevent the possibility of firing upon the city in case a mutiny should break out on any of the vessels.

North Siberia Sea Route Is Reopened By British Ships

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 22.—The sea route to North-Siberia discovered by the famous Captain Wiggins in the eighties has been successfully re-opened by three British ships chartered by the Arcos Steamship Company as agents for the Soviet Government. One of these ships, the Leonid Krassin, arrived in London from the Yenisei river with a cargo of timber after a record voyage of 47 days for the round trip.

Port Commissioner Called To Peking

(Eastern News Agency)

Hankow, September 22.—Admiral Tang, Hsiang-ming, Tupan for Port Development for Wuchang, Hanyang, and Shakow, is expected to leave here for Peking tonight, as he has received an urgent telegraphic order from President Tsao Kun to proceed to the capital.

The bridges blown up were Nos. 71 and 78.

Practically the entire rolling stock of the line had been previously taken over by General Lu, consisting of 20 locomotives and more than 200 wagons, leaving but two small and one big engines on the other side of Kashing.

In view of the commandeering, it was reported that it was the Chekiang troops and not the Kiangsu secret service men who had done the dynamiting of the bridges. Military interference with the repair crew is expected this morning if the report is true.

Shanghai is now faced with a shortage of coal as a result of the closing down of the Kailan Mines near Chinwangtao on account of the Chihli-Fengtien War.

Kailu is occupied by Fengtien forces.

Mukden claims victories all along the Jehol-Fengtien border.

Pan Kuo-kan, commander of the first Chekiang division, reiterated his loyalty to General Lu in a circular telegram issued yesterday and blamed his subordinates for the defeat on the Fukien border. While admitting that his negligence was inexcusable, he denied having sold his soul to the Chihli party and affixed the responsibility for the loss of Chuchow on the seventh regiment, whose first battalion refused to obey orders. The commandant, Chang Kuo-wei, he said, actually negotiated with General Sun Chuan-fang for the latter's entry when he was sent to fight against the Fukien invader.

Chang, General Pan said, even acted as guide for the two brigades under Lu Shan-ting and Meng Chao-yu, who formed the Fukien vanguards in the capture of Kiangshan. Pan asked for reinforcements, but they were not forthcoming and he was obliged to withdraw to Lungyu and Lanchi after losing about half of his forces.

He concluded by saying that as soon as he reorganises his division at Wufu, he would come to Shanghai and surrender himself to General Lu for punishment.

Yesterday's fighting at Tsingpu was the severest yet staged, according to the Lunghua headquarters. It is believed that the Kiangsu army has changed its tactics after their repulse in Huangtu and will now direct its strength against this city with Sunkiang as its objective.

Several attacks were lunched here by Kiangsu troops while the Chekiang occupants assumed a defensive attitude. Two battalions of General Chen Yao-shan's Fourth division withdrawn from the Taiho Lake, were sent to Tsingpu yesterday afternoon in anticipation of a big attack. At present, it is being held by Yang Hua-chao's 24th mixed brigade.

The clash at Liuho intensified yesterday morning. The Chekiang garrison troops resisted the enemy with heavy artillery aided by strong searchlights. The left wing of the Kiangsu army was repelled and retired to Chuchischiao where it has again dug in. One Kiangsu captain and more than 40 troops were killed in the attack while the Chekiang dead was five, according to Lunghua. Another assault is expected this morning.

There was a lull at the Huangtu front yesterday, while there was some skirmishing at Anting, it is believed here that Nanking is directing its force against Tsingpu to break through the defense line.

The attitude of the former

Shanghai navy is now mystifying both the warring factions in Kiangsu and Chekiang. After leaving the Chekiang board on Sunday, as a result, it is said, of the payment by Admiral Ta Shih-kwei of $160,000, the Cruiser Haichow steamed back to Woosung on Monday night at about 9 o'clock. The local chief of the admiralty, Admiral Ling Chien-chang, was unable to establish communications with her yesterday as she was anchored at a safe distance out of Woosung.

Rumors have it that following the breakaway, there was a row on board between the commander and the petty officers, the latter refused to secede on general principles. The crew sided with the petty officers and the cruiser came back to Woosung to start negotiations.

TO WORK FOR PEACE AND GIVE RELIEF

Daily meetings are being held by the newly organised Shanghai Peace Maintenance Association formed by accredited representatives of 31 Chinese local organisations. The meetings are held at the General Chamber of Commerce on North Honan Road at 5 o'clock.

Five important committees will look after the administration of the organisation: on general affairs, on finance, on intercourse, on correspondence and on investigation. Mr. Shen Tien-hsin has been elected resident secretary of the association.

Among those serving on the committees are Mr. Yu Yah-ching, chairman of the General Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Yao Tse-shih, chairman of the Nantao chamber, Mr. Shen Tso-shu, manager of the Bank of Communications, Mr. Wang Yi-ting, director of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Shen Lien-fang, chairman of the Silk and Cocoon Guild; Mr. Ni Yung-fang, chairman of the Bankers' Association; Mr. Fan Chiu-peh, Vice-chairman of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Jubin Hsu, chairman of the Chinese Advisory Committee of the Municipal Council; Mr. Shen Hsin-ching, vice-president of the Kiangsu Educational Association.

The object of the association is to work for the early conclusion of peace and to give relief to the war stricken refugees.

COAL SHORTAGE

Owing to the closing down of the mines of the Kailan Mining Administration near Chingwantao on account of the outbreak of war between Chihli and Fengtien, Shanghai may soon be affected by a coal shortage. Most of the coal consumed in Shanghai especially by the public utilities such as the municipal power station comes from the mines of the Kailan Administration and unless coal can be obtained from other sources a shortage may result here in case the war drags out for a considerable period of time. Shanghai is said to purchase a million tons of coal annually from this one source of supply.

The city of Soochow was said to be experiencing difficulties from a coal shortage several days ago, but nothing has been heard from that city recently. Soochow also gets its coal from the Kailan Company by way of Shanghai and the fighting between Shanghai and Soochow has effectively stopped the moving of coal barges on Soochow Creek or the canals.

Just how much coal reserve is on hand in Shanghai at the present time is unknown but that there is considerable worry on the part of the Kailan Mining Company's officials here is known.

TUAN MEDIATES

Tuan Chi-jui has sent Hsu Shih-ying, ex-civil governor of Anhui, to reconcile the differences between Sun Yat-sen and Chen Chiung-Ming. It is reported that Hsu will leave here for Canton today.

HUNT FOR SPIES

A vigorous spy hunt is in process here, by order of General Ho Feng-lin who has directed Colonel Lu Yung-chien chief of the Woosung and Shanghai constabulary, to issue instructions to his subordinates to search for suspicious looking persons. Several plain clothes men have been detailed on this work.

The spy hunt is the result of information alleged to have been given by spies already in custody who state that there are many other spies hiding in this locality.

The French authorities have posted notices in large Chinese characters at various points along the border of the French concession where the barbed wire entanglements have been installed. These notices are in the nature of a warning to the Chinese and read as follows: "This is settlement border; to enter it you must first hand over your firearms."

ARREST OF TATTOOED

Such fear has been aroused among the Chinese of all classes who are unfortunate enough to bear tattoo decorations on their bodies that it has been necessary for Magistrate Liu of the police court to issue an order to the various districts of the Woosung and Shanghai constabulary not to arrest tattooed persons indiscriminately. The magistrate has also consented to release those persons already taken in the general round-up who can find guarantors. This is being done in order not to disturb law-abiding laborers, inasmuch as the magistrate is of the opinion that not all tattoed persons are loafers.

The arrest of tattooed individuals followed a call for coolies to work at the front. Coolies refused to obey the order and the Woosung and Shanghai constabulary was recently directed to recruit laborers. Accordingly a round-up of all loafers and non-workers generally followed, and since the loafers generally wore a tattoo mark as a sign of their profession or lack of profession or occupation, the search was made for all persons bearing the colored ink marks under their skin. Not every tattooed person is a loafer, however, and many Chinese laborers so decorated have been afraid to leave their home or have fled into the country. To prevent hardship among honest laborers Magistrate Liu has issued the new order.

LU STILL HAS MANY SUPPORTERS AT HOME

Hangchow, Sept. 22, 1924.—From indications here now there is no danger of any possible attack on General Lu Yung-hsiang from this direction for many weeks to come. It is now definitely known that Sun Chuan-fang is not making his way toward Hangchow, but that he is still in the Chuchow district. Not only that, but General Lu is not without friends in the Chekiang army. At least two brigadier generals of importance and influence are still loyal to him. These are Wang Kao-kyi and Ho Kwo-hsi, and then there is Woo Ven-yuan commander of the Chekiang forces who did give battle to the Fukienese at Chuchow. The odds there were close to three to one, and Pan Kuo-kang's failure to send promised reinforcements resulted in victory for the superior numbers. The defeat was not due to Woo, who still claims loyalty to General Lu. The wounded Chekiang men in this Chuchow conflict were left to shift for themselves, and nobody here knows what their fate has been.

The thing which is definitely known now is that the soldiers of Pan Kuo-kang are at Venkyaien, thirty li on the other side of the Chien Tang River, except for a few who have gone back toward Shaoshing to their old camp. The Chekiang water police have interposed between the Pan soldiers and the city and they will not be allowed to come in. So far as the next few weeks go the city seems faced with a choice, a forced one to be sure, between Sun Chuan-fang now up the river near the Fukien border, or Chen Tiao-yuan, commanding a force made up largely of former followers of Lu Ni-yao whose name was bandied around the world as leader in the famous Lincheng bandit outrage of last year. Of the two, Sun Chuang-fang is the decided preference. Commissioner Hsia, now in control of the city has sent representatives both to Sun Chuang-fang and Governor Chi Shih-yuan, requesting that both refrain from sending soldiers into Chekiang. There is really nothing at all to be gained by it since it is no longer enemy territory.

In the meantime Commissioner Hsia is building up his forces and consolidating his position. The commander of the second division, formerly Civil Governor Chang Tsai-yang's own. Chow Feng-chi strongly favors Commissioner Hsia as the next tuchun. He is certainly the only Chekiang man who begins to approach to the caliber of the man needed for the post. There are however many others to reckon with. During this lull in activities the city is enjoying a respite from its strain of the past days, though it is still nervous after night fall.

20% OF HANGCHOW'S POPULATION GONE

Hangchow, Sept. 21.—Every passing day brings increased assurance to Hangchow. None of the up-the-river soldiers have arrived, and down to Lanchi your correspondent has definitely learned that there has been no looting by those who had passed that far. Rumor had it that this city in the line of march had been pillaged. As the fact of an orderly approach by the soldiers is becoming known there is much less apprehension.

The other day when Governor Lu and his retinue left for Shanghai the railway estimated that a minimum of fifteen hundred passengers were taken to Shanghai. That was only one exit. Many times more than that made their way across the river in the direction of Shaoshing and Ningpo. Beginning at midnight the day the general left there was a steady queue which continued on until the next evening. It is estimated that approximately twenty percent of the city's population went outside the walls. The C. M. S. hospital has taken in great numbers, while valuables have been stored in all the foreign homes and other mission property where extra-territoriality would secure protection.

It was persistently reported last night and this morning that General Pun Kuo-kang had returned to the city, with eyes red and swollen from hours of weeping. Whether here, or out on the other side of the river as his office insistently claimed when your correspondent attempted to secure an interview with him, he bitterly protests the charge that he betrayed General Lu Yung-hsiang. He claims that he is loyal, and that on the other hand Chang Ko-we, commander of the [illegible] border forces turned on him, forced him back and then welcomed Sun Chang-fang, his friend and former school mate, and they are now coming down the river together.

All of this may be true, but regardless, the soldiers of Pun have not been allowed to approach the city. The second division is still here and there are a few thousand police on hand also. These, however, are not enough to protest the approach of Sun and his Fukien troops, so Sun will be welcomed and invited to become the next tuchun of the province—unless the local authorities should decide to stake a trial of battle with him. There can not be a great amount of ammunition on either side. Sun is many weeks from his former base of supplies, and General Lu has cleaned the city of all war supplies that he knew anything about. It is noticeable that the police force within the city has been doubled, but this was for protection and not for aggression.

Canton, September 22.—Interviewed today at his temporary General Headquarters at Shaokwan by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, referring, to the situation between Kiangsu and Chekiang stated in part:

"I feel convinced that General Lu Yung-hsiang's departure for Shanghai is due to his strategy rather than to what was considered to be the failure of the Chekiang troops. Taking the above fact into consideration therefore, we have no need at all to be pessimistic over the prospect of the anti-Chihli actions, especially of the Chekiang troops. Inasmuch as I have already succeeded in bringing about an understanding with the authorities of all the provinces in the South-West and at present strving to come to terms with General Chen Chiung-ming, time will come in a few weeks I am sure when I shall be enabled to strengthen the union of all the friendly troops firmer than ever and thus to give a severe blow to the Chihli faction."

HUPEH TROOPS ARE SENT TO NANKING

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Sept. 18.—Another brigade of Hupeh troops now stationed in Kweichowfu in Szechuen has been mobilised by order of Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan to proceed to Nanking. The troops, commanded by Brigadier General Chang Wu-ming, have arrived in Hankow from Szechuen, and steamer accommodation has been secured for sending them to Nanking. This is the second brigade despatched by Hupeh, the first being the 41st Brigade, both of which will be placed under the orders of the Nanking headquarters.

Troop movement continues vigorously at Chengchow, where General Hu Ching-yi's Shensi troops, recently assigned for Kiangsu, are now reported to have been mobilised in the direction of Mukden.

(Eastern News Agency)

Nanking, Sept. 23.—Of the 5th Hupeh Mixed Brigade, which arrived here from Hankow the day before yesterday, the 9th Regiment of the Brigade has been despatched to Ishing and the 10th Regiment is staying within the premises of the station here. The troops, which have arrived here from other provinces as reinforcements, are some eight brigades in all. Most of these reinforcements are newly conscripted soldiers and are being stationed in Quinsan.

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Sept. 21.—With reference to the situation between Kiangsu and Chekiang, General Li Lieh-chun, General Hsu Tsung-chih and other military and political leaders whom the Eastern News Agency's representative has interviewed, are all unanimous in stating that while General Lu Yung-hsiang's failure may be a blow, to all the anti-Chihli factions it will at the same time serve a very good impetus to them and that the general trend is dependent upon the outcome of the war between Fengtien and Chihli. General Li Lieh-chun states that the existing trend will in the end tend to accelerate the alliance of all the provinces in the South-West.

Hangchow, Sept. 20.—The old question of who struck Billy Patterson is tame by the side of the questions of what the real situation up the river beyond Hangchow is. It is now forty-eight hours since Governor Lu Yung-hsiang's departure from the city, and there is still no sign of the soldiers of Sun Chuang-fang. Nor has General Pang Ku-kang come within hailing distance of the city. For the past two days telegrams have been received from him asserting that he has not turned on Governor Lu, but that the situation got out of his hands. This seems now to be somewhat borne out by the news of the last ten hours.

The report now is that the commander of the artillery of the second division Chang Koh-we who was traveling with Pang, effected an understanding with Sun Chuan-fang and then turned on Pang. The more generally believed report is that this happened after the undisputed advance of the Fukienese had brought the two armies together, and that now, since Chang's triumph in the leadership of the Chekiang forces and General Lu will not hold, and that the latter may after all have to pay more attention to developments here. There is no doubt, however, that some body struck Gov. Lu, and below the belt at that.

General Lu left the fifth and sixth divisions of his clerical forces here and is thus far keeping in touch by wire with the situation here. Furthermore the last of Governor's Lu's soldiers in the province are passing through the city from Yu Hang, about twenty miles from the city, where they, a regiment of about five hundred, have been stationed. They are proceeding to Sungkiang. Their passage through the city has revived the rumor of the defection of Chen Yao-san, whose soldiers it was thought they were. Still others have been sure they were the Fukienese descending on the city. The railroad, is now in the hands of Gen. Lu, and for today, at least, only one train is to leave for Shanghai. The regular morning train did not go and it is not known yet whether the one in the afternoon will take passengers.

The atmosphere of the city yesterday and today is as different from the day General Lu left as night is from day. A few minutes ago your correspondent was talking with the Chief Inspector of the Police for the city as he was calmly getting his hair cut and taking a shave in a barber shop. That is as dangerous as he seems to think the situation here is now. The acting civil-military head of the city, Commissioner Hsia has the situation well in hand and seems to be instilling confidence all round. When the up-the-river soldiers with their accretions from Fukien do come they may change the situation but the feeling of dread and mortal fear has given way to calm and watchful waiting. These oncoming soldiers are still all the way from a half hour to two days' march from the city so we are just waiting until they come and sort of hoping that it will be in the broad daylight with the friendly sun shining over head.

The thrill lies in our proficiency

What's Your Score

Exercise for health? Of course we do. But down in our hearts we know that the thrill lies in our proficiency—in making the best score and in landing the biggest string.

What don't we do to give ourselves that thrill?

We pinch our pocket-books for clubs, tackle, gear, equipment—all in order to increase our proficiency. Yet, if we stop to think a minute, we know that in golf, tennis, fishing, hunting, motoring—any outdoor pastime—defective eyesight will spoil our form and take the edge off our enjoyment.

We sigh for Roosevelt's guns—when we should be thinking of his glasses.

Even if you already wear glasses, have your eyes examined. Many who need special lenses for outdoors aren't aware of it. Perhaps another prescription would improve your game immensely.

To judge your distances, putting in your strokes, land the fish, bag the game—to get from outdoors the thrill that outdoors owes you—have your eyes examined without delay.

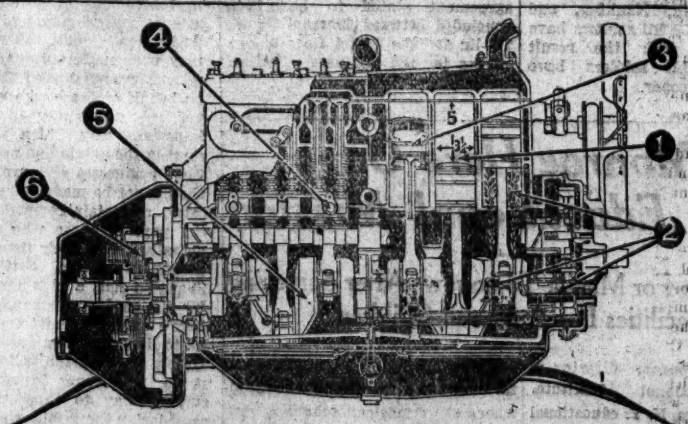
THE FAMOUS JEWETT SIX ENGINE — PAIGE BUILT



THE SECRET OF POWER

HEREWITH is displayed the secret of the enormous power of the Jewett six-cylinder motor car. It is worthy of careful consideration. Ponder well on this exceptional engine. The engine that has been first in hundreds of hill-climbing events. The engine that accelerates on top gear from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds. The engine that is the smoothest to start and the first to get away. 110,000 Jewett motor cars with this engine have proved its worth.

1. Extraordinary cylinder construction produce amazing power. The 3¼-inch bore and 5-inch stroke, give the Jewett engine a positive piston displacement of 249 cubic inches. Piston displacement determines power. Just contemplate what this means for a motor car of even greater cost than the Jewett.

2. Forced pressure oiling: The Jewett Six has a high pressure, hollow crankshaft system that forces two gallons of oil per minute through all main and connecting rod bearings. Whether driving at top or low speed, oil is continuously forced through at 20 to 40 pounds pressure.

3. Extra large wrist pins: Wrist pins are hidden, but vital to an engine's operation. The power blow of each explosion is transmitted through the wrist pin to each piston. Jewett wrist pins are approximately twice the size in diameter of the wrist pins of other cars in the same class. The extra strength of Jewett's wrist pins contributes to long motor life.

4. Oil-bathed valve-gear: The oil sprayed by the high pressure system reaches the crankshaft and push rods of the Jewett valve assembly—quiet operation the result. Valve springs are made of expensive electric furnace vanadium steel of great tensile strength. The entire valve assembly is easily accessible.

5. Eighty-three pound crankshaft: A heavy shaft—much heavier than is used in comparable cars. Jewett engineering standards require a crankshaft material that tests to an elastic limit of 70,000 pounds per square inch. Jewett's crankshaft compares point by point with those in far more costly cars.

6. Easy acting clutch: With the new Paige-type clutch, however fast you lift your foot, you can neither stall the engine nor jerk the car. The reason: A light-weight driven clutch member, weighing less than 3½ pounds, has one-third the usual weight, and with one-third the momentum, quickly adjusts itself to speed changes. It engages smoothly and releases under the gentlest foot pressure.

AMERICAN SAILOR ON GUARD DUTY IN SETTLEMENT SHOT

Bullet Passes Through Hand; Story Of Two Chinese

An American sailor on patrol duty on the Settlement border at Ward Road was shot through the hand by his own rifle yesterday afternoon. The bullet traveled the whole width of the hand, breaking several bones and severing the main arteries, and he is likely to permanently lose the use of his hand.

The wounded man is Edward Humiston, a sailor on the U. S. S. Huron. He appears to have been on patrol duty alone on Ward Road, near the Amerian Drug Company's laboratory. According to the rather vague account first obtained of the affair, he had stopped a suspicious-looking Chinese and was seafching him for arms, holding his rifle in his right hand by the bayonet, when another Chinese—a young boy it is said—slipped up behind him and set off the gun. The bullet passed right through his hand, almost edgeways.

Humiston walked to the shelter not far off where some other sailors were stationed. There he was given first aid treatment, a bandage and tourniquet being applied to stop the flow of blood. Another sailor then started off to town with Humiston in a ricsha. A foreigner in an automobile picked them up and took them to the General Hospital, where the wounded man was given temporary treatment by Dr. A. H. Swan until the arrival of Dr. Leach, the United States Naval Surgeon.

Commander Loomis, in charge of the American landing force, at a late hour last night stated that the wounding appeared to have been accidental. Humiston is to be taken back to his ship this morning.

draw lots to see which three shall serve for one year longer, and so on, until all have finished this extra term. After that, the members will be elected by the board for a period of five years. Neither the Chinese nor the American government will have anything to do with the fund thereafter. The board will have two treasurers, one Chinese, one American, and the funds are to be used for educational or cultural purposes only and not for railways, flood conservation, or anything of the sort.

Dr. Monroe, in talking of the purposes for which he thought the funds should be administered, said that the money should be applied so far as possible to benefit the entire mass of the Chinese people and not be used for the support and encouragement of the very small intellectual class.

One of the chief lines of interest to which the main support of the fund should go, according to Dr. Monroe, is for experimentation for the improvement of village life, since, he says, ninety-five percent of the Chinese people live in villages. Yet, the greatest educational activities now are carried on in cities with the result that the educational system draws the ability in the villages away from them and into the towns which state of affairs results, naturally, in making conditions worse instead of better for the villages. The education of these villages is one of the greatest needs and the education should be along the lines of health, sanitation, economic improvement, etc.

The first meeting of the Board will be held early next May in Peking when determination of policy and allocation of funds will be made. Dr. Monroe, who is going on a short trip to the Philippines, thence to the States, will return in January and will remain in the Orient for some time in connection with his work.

feared that unless immediate arrangements can be made for a truce to enable these bodies to be disposed of, disease may break out.

Blue Cross officials are still busily engaged in bringing to Shanghai refugees from Lao Tu Chao, a town located about seven li northwest from Liuho. A village headman makes the statement that large numbers of Kiangsu dead remain unburied in the town.

It is claimed that until last night's fighting Chekiang has always acted on the defensive, when after repelling the Kiangsu attack by machine gun fire the Chekiang forces advanced and occupied sections of the Kiangsu trenches.

No new troops were brought up to this sector during the day. Troops are now stationed at Luihong, about 15 li from Chapei.

Several reports have been received to the effect that the hospital belonging to the 7th Day Baptist Mission (American) at Liuho has been partly demolished by shell fire from the Kiangsu Navy.

Very little movement was noticed on the Liuho road, the Chekiang forces claim to have sufficient supplies of all kinds for several days.

At 8 p.m. heavy firing in the direction of Kating was noticed.

"—the aeons of forgotten Time When man was not!"

BEFORE man came, Time was. Not Time as we reckon it today; no mere minutes, but ages, aeons. A century flung into that dim abyss was as a raindrop swallowed up by the sea.

Against that vague, shadowy dawn of the world loomed huge, fearsome monsters—dinosaur, pterodactyl, mastodon—

It is a far, faint cry from the mists of the remote and unremembered past to the high-tension, split-second present.

Yet even there, in those strange, awesome animal bulks, was stirring the irresistible force of evolution—that eager upward urge of which was to emerge at last as man!

And the tireless flight of Father Time which spanned those colossal ages, is the same that measures our work and our lives today.

Three Year And Two Year Sentences Given For Larceny

Two men were sentenced in the Mixed Court yesterday to two and three years' imprisonment for larceny. The counts included two thefts from little children of jewelry and trinkets, a gold wrist bell having been taken from one child and a gold locket from another. There were also counts of stealing a silver hand-bag, a gold ring, and a gold hairpin from a lady, and several articles of clothing from the back of a ricsha.

When arraigned in Court the two blamed it on the war. The man who had stolen the property, they explained, had heard the call of duty and enlisted, and had turned the property over to them. They had pawned it and thereby come into the possession of the pawn-tickets which the police found on them. The Court, however, believed this tale to be a fabrication, and found both of the men guilty.

The first accused, whose list of convictions has reached the unlucky number of thirteen, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment. The second, whose record is better by four convictions less, was sentenced to two years. Both were charged with returning from expulsion, and their sentence yesterday included expulsion from the Settlement at the expiration of their prison term.

Urga Restless After Danzan's Execution

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 19.—A letter from Kalgan reports that the recent excitement in Urga was due to the arrest and execution of Danzan, Minister of War and former Minister of Finance and of one of the Under-Secretaries. Charges of bribery and corruption had been made against them. The report that a number of foreigners had been arrested is not entirely correct, but a Russian chauffeur of Tientsin, named Whiteman, is under arrest there and is awaiting trial. Several other foreigners were placed under open arrest but were afterwards released.

Agreement Reached In Principle Over Russ-Japan Parley

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, September 23.—As regards the Russo-Japanese negotiations Reuter's representative learns authoritatively that while agreement in principle on many points has been reached, a few subjects still present difficult and knotty problems.

The hope is expressed, however, that mutual efforts will succeed in solving these difficulties in a short space of time. Probably within the next ten days or a fortnight, it will be seen whether or not a final agreement can be reached on these few questions, which have already been discussed on many occasions. When a conclusion is reached, Japan will accord recognition to the Soviet Government.

HITTING BELOW THE BELT

We have received an anonymous letter which is apparently deliberately designed to damage the business of a local resident. Such methods are most strongly deprecated in all civilized countries, it being understood how difficult and expensive a process it is to run down the perpetrator (or perpetrators) and make him suffer the consequences of his action. Damage may be wrongfully done by such letters which it would be impossible for any court decision to rectify, whereas if the writer has a just cause of complaint he has his remedy at law without any hindrance whatever. We are sure that other residents of Shanghai who may receive copies of this letter will promptly consign them to the waste paper basket.

Through the energetic efforts of Chief Officer Pott of the Shanghai Fire Brigade a serious fire was prevented yesterday afternoon on the Admiral Line steamer Esmond which had just completed discharge of its cargo at the Dollar Wharf. The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion broke out at about two o'clock and was extinguished at about 3 o'clock. Considerable apprehension was felt at first owing to the proximity of the fire to the steamer's oil supply, but largely due to the efforts of the fire brigade the blaze was localised and the only damage suffered was to a shipment of flour which was flooded. The ship was loaded with general cargo.

He said his paper had no special service of war news from Shanghai and that what it printed from day to day was furnished to it either by the police authorities themselves or by those news agencies which are still allowed to exist by the Government. The order of the police suspending the paper failed to mention any specific offense, merely saying that it had violated the Press Law. What that press law is, however, nobody appears to have the least idea. Probably it exists only in the imagination of the authorities.

Surf-Riding Has Become Thrilling Hawaiiang Sport

A description of surf-riding as popular sport at Waikiki Beach written by Mike Jay, Honolulu orts editor, in an article for the awaii Tourist Bureau. Mr. Jay mments on surf-riding as that lmost lost art of the ancient waiians which is being restor- to greater glory than for many ars past," Mr. Jay says.

"At no place in the world is ng-distance surf-riding enjoyed cept in Hawaii. Waikiki surf- lers have been known to ride to e shore from points several iles out at sea. Nowhere else the world is the contour of e ocean bottom so arranged as give the long rolling surf cessary to successful riding. ence the art has been confined this one locality. The benefits erived from surf-riding are ap- arent in the fact that Hawaii has rnished the world's fastest wimmers.

"The powerful muscles that lled Duke Kahanamoku rough the water in world record me in the Olympic games in weden in 1912 and at Antwerp 1920 were developed in pad- ling a surf board twelve feet ng, weighing ninety pounds. is an unusually long board. st of the others at Waikiki eing about nine feet long, but ven its dimensions are not any reater than those of the boards sed by the old Hawaiians.

AN ANCIENT SPORT

"The ancient islanders deemed urf-riding one of their favorite astimes. Great carnivals were eld. Both sexes indulged in the port, and it was not infrequent hat the gentler sex carried off he honors. Every one, from hiefs to serfs, took a lively in- erest in this sport. Betting often accompanied the carnivals, nd it is recorded that canoes, ishing lines, wearing apparel, wine, poultry and, in some cases, life itself were staked in wagers on champions.

"In those days the selection of a tree for wood for a surf board was accompanied by a semi- religious rite. In these days, however, the surf-rider gets his board by ordering it at a planing mill, or having it made by one of the 'beach boys.' Most boards are from seven to nine feet long, about two feet wide, and one to two and one-half inches thick. They taper to the bow, but the stern is square cut to give it a hold in the wave. The weight runs from sixty to ninety-five pounds.

"The transformation of a roller into a breaker is exceedingly slow at Waikiki, because the beach bottom shelves so gradually from the reef to the shore that the comber travels from a quarter to a full mile before it breaks on the sand. Besides this, there is the 'send' of a wave which causes the white foam to curl around the top, run down the incline and bury the surf-rider up to his knees. As the ocean strikes the reef all the force and energy of a thousand miles is halted in its course. The upper part of the wave goes over the reef and starts to fall and crumble into foam, and the foam boils forward with the motion of the wave. It is the fury of this boiling surf that makes surf-riding such a thrilling and dangerous sport.

PROGRESS OF THE BEGINNER

"After all, there must be some danger if thrills are to be had. There is plenty of danger in surf-riding. If the Waikiki beach has been free since the memory of men from a fatal accident it is probably due to the fact that Neptune in his wisdom has provided a place close to the shore in shallow water where light combers make up what is known as 'Malihini surf.' Here the newcomer may learn the rudiments of the art and acquire the necessary confidence and ability before venturing into the dangerous regions. After some weeks spent in this small surf one becomes proficient for the next step, which is 'cornucopia surf.' This is a little further from the shore line, but where the water is still shallow enough to allow standing on the bottom. Here the beginner commences to learn sliding, for occasionally waves come without breaks.

"Sliding is the art of riding a roller at an angle. It cannot be learned in the Malihini surf, for there the waves are all foam and of little height. The work of sliding in cornucopia is fast and furious. The beginner waits until a promising wave nears. Then with a quick shove of the board forward he throws himself flat upon it and paddles furiously to obtain the same speed as the incoming wave. The height of the wave prohibits riding it in straightforward, so of necessity the board must be turned at an angele and directed down the side of the moving hill of green water.

"After two or three weeks of this the beginner becomes proficient enough to try the 'canoe' surf, or 'Queen's' surf. Canoe surf is so named because most of the outrigger canoes use it while Queen's is near the famous Diamond Head, and is exceedingly limited in its wave length, but is very steep and fast.

STUNTS IN THE SURF

"There is a trick in surf-riding just as there is a knack in speed swimming. The surfing directions are simple. Pick out a good wave, accelerate the board by kicking the feet and paddling with the hands until the waves grip and hurl the board shoreward. Once the board has been caught, it is sent along on the wave, and then the rider takes various positions, standing, kneeling, sitting or doing stunts.

"To come from a position of lying on the stomach to that of kneeling the change must be lightning quick. The hands are placed in each side of the board, gripping the edge, the weight of the body thrown forward on the hands and the feet brought up and tucked under. From the knee posture to the standing position, the hands are placed again at the sides of the board, and the erect attitude is assumed only after first coming up with the body bent forward to counteract the speed of the inclined board.

"The outstretched arms are used at first to maintain balance, but the more experienced surf-riders may be seen coming in with hands on hips, body steady and erect, and feet together, the knees sagging occasionally to shift the weight in guiding the board.

"As the rider develops confidence, there comes his desire to do stunts. Standing on the head is an old one. Another is facing backward and letting the board take its own course. The Hawaiian rider also often changes boards while riding, one man stepping to another board and then going back. A stunt developed during the visit of the Prince of Wales has proved a favorite. When four or five riders catch the same wave they close up and ride together, and one man will step from his own board to the next, and then right on down the line to the last board. Carrying a lighter man on the shoulders is a feat often performed by Duke Kahanamoku."

Are you imbued with the idea that your opinions are best, and so sound that others cannot possibly equal yours and in consequence you do not seek to get benefit from others?

It matters not how much you know, there is more you can learn.

Because you have more experience it does not follow that the less experienced one cannot give you some good advice.

Perhaps your word has been law so long in your establishment that you have come to believe that your word is supreme, and anything that others around you might say is of little value.

If your attitude toward the opinion of others were more open and you would show your appreciation and consideration of the facts submitted to you at times, you might get some valuable pointers.

But if you carry the idea that only that which emanates from your brain is worth something, naturally none will trouble to advise or inform you. Few can go far on their own experience—entirely.

Cease projecting yourself into things so much that you cannot see anything in the opinions other have formed from a different experience.

WADE AND MANSEL SMITH TO MEET HISAE & NOGUCHI

Open Doubles Championship To Be Decided At Majestic Today

The semi-final round of the Open Doubles Championship of the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association was played off yesterday afternoon, J. L. Wade and W. Mansel-Smith defeating A. L. Sullivan and L. Goldman in an excellent contest.

Those who turned up at the match were rewarded by four sets of high-class playing, full of thrills. Wade and W. Mansel-Smith justified their entry into the finals to meet the Japanese cracks. Hisae and Noguchi, by their steadiness. It took the two quite a while to realise their one mistake, but once it was rectified there was no stopping their running ahead and winning.

The first set yesterday resulted in a win for Sullivan and Goldman over the other two. There was some first-class playing, and the victory by a 6-3 score, was well earned. In the second set, being three down, Sullivan and Goldman again showed their form by equalising the score, making it three-all, after which however, they broke down through well-placed lobs on the part of Wade and Mansel-Smith, who won the set by a 6-3 score.

In the third set Mansel-Smith and Wade again made some good lobs, and played short, tactics which gave them this set 6 to 2. In the fourth, which was strenuously contested, Wade and Mansel-Smith again won, 6 to 4.

Goldman and Sullivan had qualified for the semi-final through their win over Capt. Barrett and N. H. Leslie Monday, three sets to one, playing first-class tennis. They could not maintain this form when playing against Wade and Mansel-Smith, however, as both the latter have a variety of strokes that would trouble the best.

The Doubles Championship is to be settled this afternoon at four at the Majestic Hotel's grounds, when Wade and Mansel-Smith are to meet Hisae and Noguchi. From the form displayed during the past week it will be a skilful and hard-fought contest.

SINGLE CHAMPIONSHIP

The Singles Championship, for which thirty-eight entries were received, is making steady progress and is well into the third round at present. On Saturday the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association will lay out three courts, which will be occupied by prominent players battling for the premier honor, and from Monday next there will be three games daily until the final round.

Tennis enthusiasts can have the right of entry throughout the series by purchasing a $2 ticket. The Association has staged all these matches on one ground, thereby giving players as well as spectators a chance to meet, discuss, and follow the forms of players in general.

GRAND DUKE CYRIL ASSUMES VACANT RUSSIAN THRONE

Issues Manifesto From Berlin To The People In Russia

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 23.—The Grand Duke Cyril, in a manifesto to the Russian people, assumes the vacant throne of Russia with the title of Tsar.

The Coburger Tageblatt learns that the Grand Duke does not intend officially to inform the Foreign Powers at present of his assumption of the Russian throne, and that he will continue to reside in Germany.

The manifesto dwells on the sufferings of the people of Russia —formally the grain-producer of Europe. It declares that hope of foreign help would be in vain owing to the efforts of Communists to bring about a world revolution. He hopes that the Russian Army will speak the decisive word, whereby the people will arise and recall their legitimate ruler. The Grand Duke promises to restore the Church, to pardon those who have gone astray and to give the land to the peasants.

U. S. Brigadier-General Hunts Tigers In India

A Kiplingesque flavor, tales of tiger hunts, primitive songs and dances of the East, stately durbars and florid compliments in soft spoken speeches are contained in a native account, just received, of a visit to an Indian rajah by Brigadier General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the United States Army Air service, while on an inspection tour of the Orient with Mrs. Mitchell last winter, says a writer in the New York Times.

The description of the Mitchells' hunting exploits and their royal entertainment is by D. D. Dadimaster, chief minister of Sirguja State, one of the central provinces, 350 miles west of Calcutta, who apparently acted as guide, translater and transcriber.

"In February last, while the Maharaja of Sirguja was staying in Calcutta," Mr. Dadimaster writes, "Brigadier General Mitchell of the United States Army Air force, was introduced to him by Maharaja Sir Prayod Nath Tagore. The general, who was on semi-official duty in India, was desirous of having a short holiday, so the Maharaja saheb invited him for a shoot in his State.

RECEIVED BY THE MAHARAJA

"General and Mrs. Mitchell were received by the Maharaja at the splendid guest house where every arrangement was made for the comfort of the guests. The next day, accompanied by the Maharaja, they went out for a tiger shoot, but the animal did not appear until the beat was nearly closed and the guns unloaded. The general hastily reloaded his gun and fired a chance shot, but the tiger disappeared."

Four days later General Mitchell got his first tigress, "which," Mr. Dadimaster added, "was a big animal." The next day "the general shot a big tiger, after which there was a lull, although on each subsequent day he bagged some big game."

"On the twenty-third, Mrs. Mitchell, who generally accompanied the general sighted a full grown tigress and laid it low with the coolness of an experienced shikari (big game hunter).

Five days later Mrs. Mitchell shot another tigress.

"On this occasion," Mr. Dadimaster's narrative continues, "great excitement was caused, as the beast, before it fell, had become furious and attempted to rush at the machan (platform) from which the fatal shot had been fired.

"Altogether the general was lucky in securing a splendid bag. As regards tigers, four fell to the gun of the general, while Mrs. Mitchell was responsible for two good sized tigresses."

HOLD A SPECIAL DURBAR

Mr. Dadimaster enumerated the American aviator's decorations from Allied Governments.

"Thus it would be seen," he reasoned, "that the guest was not merely an officer of high merits, but was a great general of the Government of the United States. The Maharaja, therefore, in honor of this great officer of a Government so friendly with Great Britain, held a special durbar on the night of March 26."

Following is the general's account of his impressions of tiger hunting as written by Mr. Dadimaster:

"The Maharaja has ordered buffaloes to be hitched out as tiger bait at suitable and likely points. These are inspected early in the mornings. The news arrives of a kill; all has been expectation beforehand.

"The beaters, the stops and the machans are assigned in true military fashion. We come to the end of the motor road and mount the waiting elephants. These are not the ordinary slow, lumbering animals that we have seen in other places, but fast walking, alert creatures.

"The elephants take us through the jungles. Although animals of such enormous proportions, and although a tiger has no terrors for them, it is amusing to see how they are alarmed by the smallest creatures. They feel their way across soft ground with their trunks and test every footstep on steep slopes, so no harm will come to their burdens. Occasionally we are served with an impromptu shower bath from their great trunks as they spray regurgitated water over themselves for cooling purposes, or again they throw clouds of dust to keep away the flies.

READY FOR THE BIG CAT

"We reach the machans at last and dismount from the kneeling elephants. The directors of the hunt are there. The maharaja gives his final orders. Lal Saheb, with eyes that can see a tiger through the leaves and brush, accompanies us in the machan. The elephants leave and the signal is given to begin the beat. Word is passed from man to man along the line of stops. Five hundred voices break out in unison clear across the jungle. They advance with the regularity of soldiers to the sound of the drum.

"The tiger is started from his lair: first he listens, then he scents the air. He has not moved yet. He is making up his mind what to do. Now a great shout comes from the beat. The tiger knows that his enemies are upon him, and that he must move. Cautiously he makes quick retreat along a nulla. He knows, however, that man's collective intelligence, superior arms and cunning must be avoided, and he decides to keep away from them rather than fight. Fight he will, though, if necessary.

"Suddenly where he thought no man existed, he runs into a barricade near the machan; he is turned back with difficulty, and with a great roar he turns in the direction of the machan. The hair along his back stands. It is his final rush.

"The great orange and black striped cat leaping through the jungle furnishes a stupendous example of pent-up animal power. Gradually we raise our rifles and a shot lays low the animal."

of the platform under the poor protection of darkness instead of going into one of the small houses nearby.

One soldier was a lot luckier. His rifle was sent back yesterday for repairs with a steel-jacketed bullet in it which had come from almost the direction in which he was firing, plowed some distance toward the butt through the wood around the barrel and stopped part way through a metal band holding the wood around the steel. Several other rifles came down with muzzles like small frayed umbrellas; the bearers had allowed mud to get in the end of the barrel and the next shot fired split open the muzzle.

A Chinese employe of the American hospital near Liuho who revisited the place said it had been ransacked in the absence of the staff, which left hurriedly while the place was under fire and without having time to post a proclamation of ownership or an American flag.

NO BREAK THROUGH

All thoughts of possibility of a break through the Chekiang line on the Huangtu-Kiating-Liuho sector have been abandoned by the Kiangsu troops following the failure of their supreme effort last Friday, the day on which cannonading was heard so distinctly in the Settlement, according to the reports of a foreign observer of military experience who returned yesterday from the northerners' side of the lines.

According to this observer, the Kiangsu leaders claimed that for this drive they outnumbered the Chekiang troops four to one. In their attempts to advance the leaders acknowledged their men suffered tremendous losses from machine gun fire and they said that in spite of the numbers sacrificed no appreciable dent was made in the defense lines. They have given up practically all hope of breaking through the defense line, he said, which has been much strengthened in the days since they acknowledged this defeat.

SPANISH PRISONER BREAKS IN AGAIN ON AMERICANS

Offers $120,000 For Aid To Recover The Sum Of $360,000

A chance to make $120,000 by investing a few dollars in an old established business is being offered to American investors. It is a business which has been handed down from generation to generation for a period of nearly 350 years, having been founded immediately after the destruction of the Armada. At times it has been highly profitable, but for nearly twenty years it had slumped. As the result of overmuch publicity the game has fallen into disuse. Now apparently some enthusiast is trying to revive it.

Oliver W. Sheets of 871 Brook Avenue (New York) is one man who has an option on the big opening in this ancient and conservative line. Dax Seal, a restaurant owner of Middletown N. Y., is another. The opportunity which has come to Mr. Sheets and to Mr. Seal is that of obtaining 33 1-3 percent of $360,000—which works out at $120,000—by rescuing a wealthy Spanish prisoner or marrying his heiress.

Mr. Sheets and Mr. Seal unfortunately have other plans and projects which would make it inconvenient for them to collect the $120,000, so the proposition is practically open to anybody that could use 120 grand.

The chance to earn money in your spare time, which both men are passing on to those who need it more than they do, came in a letter on cross-lined note paper in a blue envelope with a Spanish stamp.

HERE IS THE LETTER

The letter, which would undoubtedly be found in a court of law to constitute a contract, is as follows:

Barcelona, 30-7-24. Dear Sir: Being imprisoned here by bankruptcy I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of 360,000 dollars I have in America, being necessary to come here to raise the seizure of my luggage, paying to the Register of the Court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden two checks payable to bearer for that sum. As reward I will give up to you the third part, viz., 120,000 dollars.

I cannot receive your answer in the prison, but you can forward a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it me addressed as below.

Awaiting your answer to instruct you all my secret I only sign now C.

First of all answer by cable, not by letter. Raul Casas, Sista Correos 1750, Solensa (Spain).

Doring: Sheets.

The man who takes advantage of the opportunity may have to hold himself in readiness for a trip to Spain, because Spanish prisoners are not freed now by small sums from America, as their predecessors used to be. Hardly any of them get loose from their chains unless the rescuer arrives on the spot.

THE PRISONER USUALLY DIES

One of the saddest features of the Spanish prisoner cases is that they usually die unless the ransomer is prompt. Generally a dable or a black-edged letter announces that the prisoner has perished and left a helpless daughter, as per enclosed photo, and a million orphaned pesetas. This message is usually sent over, according to the signatures, by the confessor or by the family duenna, who have written because they happened to know how the late prisoner would clank his chains and pray that the sainted Americano would save him and his.

Romance is not dead. Spanish love and Spanish gold, chivalry at 10,000 percent profit make the heart throb while the pencil calculates. The chance of rescuing a $360,000 estate with an heiress from a Frenchman seized Jean-maid among the chatels and movables has caused many to make the trip to Spain. Not all of these romances have had happy endings. The dream of lustrous black eyes and chests of gold sometimes ends with the knight errant getting a knock on the head and finding himself in a Spanish hospital or getting knockout drops and awakening to discover himself to be nothing less than a Spanish prisoner charged with intoxication.

The Spanish prisoner game started after the sinking of the Armada when most of Philip's 188 ships were sunk and many Spaniards of wealth and name were cast up on the English coast. Some of these prisoners did pay large ransoms to their captors. Some were richly rewarded for helping Spaniards to get home. Within a few years Spanish crooks pretending were looting simple minded Britishers. This industry was so firmly established that it has continued ever since. Men in every country in the world have received appealing letters from Spanish prisoners.

GAME POPULAR WHEN JAILS ARE FULL

The rattle of the Spanish prisoner's fetters was heard throughout this country after the Spanish War, when the tale was varied slightly, the prisoner being sometimes an American and sometimes a Spaniard jailed for American sympathies.

Although the Spanish prisoner never in prison, the Spanish prisoner game always becomes popular in Spain when the jails are full. The political troubles in Spain have filled the jails up and it was predicted that this would put the venerable industry on its feet again.

The Spanish police have always shown a tendency to favor bullfighting as the national amusement, and this has had an injurious effect on the Spanish prisoner game, which has passed its prime in many parts of Spain. Its profits are said to grow less and less.

In the file of the National Police at Madrid letters of complaint show that up to the time of the annihilation of a gang ten years ago this particular crowd had made victims as far away as Sumatra. It was shown that replies came from 20 percent of those who received Spanish prisoner letters, and 4 or 5 percent sent money.

One of the largest hauls made by this band was 29,000 francs, chou, who was either robbed and murdered or was robbed and so covered with humiliation at his stupidity that he never returned to his home in France.

LONGEVITY IN VITAMIN A, SAYS PROF. SHERMAN

Rats Deprived Of The Food Element Live Half As Long As Others

Toronto, Aug. 11.—Professor H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, reported today to the British Association for the Advancement of Science that experiments upon rats may have great influence on the dietary of the human race and point the way to the prevention of pulmonary tuberculosis.

He told the story of a rat family divided into two groups, both well fed and happy. One got a plentiful supply of the fat soluble vitamin A, which occurs in butter, cod-liver oil and other such products. The other group was put on a reduced ration of this important vitamin. Otherwise, both ate the same menu.

The effect could not have been guessed from their appearance, because the two groups looked equally well fed. But those on a low ration of vitamin A lived only half as long as those fed with plenty. If they had been human beings they would have died in their prime, at thirty. The rats dosed heavily with vitamin A raised large families of happy children; those on reduced vitamin rations bore few and raised none to maturity.

More important still to the individual, if not to the race, is the fact that the rats on the diet low in vitamin A "showed a striking tendency to break down with lung disease at an age corresponding to that at which pulmonary tuberculosis so often develops in young men and women."

"The bacillus involved is different," said Professor Sherman, "but the close parallelism in susceptibility of lung tissue to infection at this stage of the life history appears very significant."

OTHER VITAMINS EXPLAINED

The vitamin called X, which is essential to reproduction and without which animals cannot give birth to young, was explained to the association by its discoverer, Professor Herbert M. Evans, of the University of California. Professor Evans has found this new vitamin in lettuce, in the germ of wheat, in egg yolk and in butter and it is entirely different and distinct from the other vitamins.

The chemical isolation of one of the vitamins, sometimes known as D, but better known as Bios, has been achieved by Professor Walter H. Eddy, of Columbia University, who has found that this substance, for which he has been able to write the chemical formula, affects the growth of both rats and yeast. Heretofore, it has been necessary to study vitamins by their effects, since they could not be handled like the known chemicals. Rapid progress is to be expected, now that the secret of their identity is being discovered.

The X-rays have revealed nearly 200 forms and structures of minerals and rocks which were not known to exist, Sir William H. Bragg, famous authority on X-rays and radio-activity, told in his Presidential address, before the physics section, how the old thirty-two classes of crystal structure determined from exterior appearance, had been increased to 230 through photographs which show how the atoms are arranged.

Possibilities of increasing the food supply of the world through study of agricultural factors as yet little understood are enormous, Sir John Russell, F. R. S., president of the agriculture section, told his associates.

No attempt has been made in the field, Sir John said, to control two of the most important of these factors—influencing the growth of plants, light and temperature, although both now are subjects of experiment. He spoke of these possible fields of experimentation which hold out promise of increasing yield and quality manifold.

1—Increase of plants in efficiency as transformers of the sun's energy. As present plants transform only about 1 percent of this energy. The most efficient plant lags far behind the worst motor car. Sir John said that increases in plant growth amounting to from 20 to 25 percent had been obtained in England by the influence of high tension electrical discharge, which presumably acts by increasing in some way the efficiency of the plant as an energy transformer.

2. Adaptation of plants to both soil and climate. A soil moderately fertile under one set of climatic conditions may be absolutely unproductive in another.

SOILS INFLUENCE CROPS

3. Temporary changes in plants brought about by changed conditions, wholly independent of the plant breeder. It is a commonplace among farmers that certain soil conditions influence not only the yield but the quality of crops.

4. Control of pests or parasitic diseases, which in England ruin at least 10 percent of the total value of the crops each year. Pests and parasites do harm only when they are present in an attacking state, when the plant is in a sufficiently receptive state and when conditions are favorable to the development of the pest. If plants could be pushed through the receptive stages before the pest was ready they would escape attack. The best remedy, he said, still lay with the plant breeder, by producing a variety immune to all diseases.

Beauty Gone, Girl Asks $500,000.

This photograph of Helen Jesmer, former member of the Follies in New York City, was taken before she went auto riding with Philip Morgan Plant, 23-year-old stepson of U. S. District Attorney William Hayward, who inherited $15,000,000 from his father, the steamship and railroad magnate. On the ride the car skidded and Miss Jesmer was injured, losing the sight of one eye and having her face crushed in. As a result of the alleged loss of her beauty her suit for $500,000 is on trial in a New York court.

A standard test for eyesight

Don't Short-Weight Yourself!

"I wouldn't let my grocer guess how heavy a pound is—not when I was paying."

But if it weren't for the standards established and the regular inspection of scales and measures, you would go right on paying without knowing whether you were cheated or not.

Guessing and paying—just as you do with your eyesight. For there is an eyesight standard too. An eye-examination is the standard for normal effective eyesight.

No comparison with what your friends see at the same distance will do anything but mislead you. You cannot see through their eyes nor they through yours. But by examining your sight we can tell if it is up to standard and if not, we will prescribe glasses to bring it up to standard. Test with the one standard that can tell you the truth. Have your eyes examined now!

CONTROVERSY OF N.Y.K. IS WORSE; EMPLOYES DEFIANT

President Of Chamber Of Commerce At Tokyo To Mediate

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, September 23.—Following the manifesto issued yesterday by the directors of the N. Y. K. Company, the Dokokai representing those, who are opposed to the management of the company, today issued a statement, repudiating what had been published in the said manifesto. The controversy between the two opposing factions is thus growing from bad to worse. In the meantime, the Export Department of the Yokohama Branch yesterday afternoon decided to take such drastic steps as to refuse to take up goods to be shipped abroad.

In view of the gravity of the situation, Mr. Raita Fujiyama, President of the Tokio Chamber of Commerce, acting as a mediator, has made an announcement to the effect that the question of the construction of superior up-to-date liners is of such a natnre that not only surpasses the relations between the directors and the employees of the company but also seriously affects economic and social conditions in Japan from the view-point of a public organisation that represents the Japanese nation and that it is for the foregoing reason that the controversy should by all means be settled amicably and as promptly as possible.

So far, the attitude towards the present issue of the managers of the N. Y. K. Branches in Shanghai, London, New York and Bombay is still ambiguous. It is reported, however, that Mr. Shimizu, Manager of the London Branch, upon receiving a telegram from the Head Office in Tokio, appointing him Chief of a Department of General Affairs in the Head Office, is alleged to have refused the appointment, manifesting his intention that he would cast in his lot with the Dokokai.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 23.—Today being a national holiday there have been no definite developments in the Nippon Yusen Kaisha strike, which in view of possible far-reaching consequences is absorbing public attention to the exclusion of all else.

The publication of the directors' statement yesterday has led to further rejoinders on the part of the strikers, whose attitude, according to this morning's papers is stiffening by assurances of support from branch offices everywhere.

The seamen, with the exception of one section which is reported to be backing up the President, maintain neutrality. Should they be forced into the dispute, the situation will be greatly complicated. It is understood that the directors are holding another meeting tomorrow for further deliberation of the affair.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Sept. 23.—In connection with the internal strife of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the managers of its branches in London, New York, and Bombay have also wired to the Tokio Head Office, announcing that they as well as all the Japanese staffs of these three branches are determined to resign en bloc. The Shanghai Branch of the Company is the only one that keeps silent, manifesting so far no definite attitude.

CITY OF CHEFOO IS CLOSED AFTER TEN AT NIGHT

Chinese Are Forbidden To Appear In Streets After This Hour

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chefoo, Sept. 18.—Chefoo is in a semi-state of martial law and the city is closed after ten at night, Chinese being forbidden to appear on the streets after this hour.

The Autumn Race meetings held on September 5 and 13 aroused much interest but the wet weather did a great deal to spoil the events. The second meeting had been arranged for September 6 but heavy rain on that day and the day following necessitated that the finishing races be postponed until the following Saturday, September 13.

The racing was of a higher standard than Chefoo has seen for many years.

The first serious accident at any Chefoo meetings for several years occurred on the first day when Mr. Kay, taking his pony Mik to the start for the second time, got bolted with and came down heavily in the country. A broken collar bone, two fractured ribs and a strained shoulder were the result.

Of the jockeys at the meetings Mr. Villiers headed the list with Mrs. Railton second.

The first prize of $999 in the Chefoo Champion Sweep Stake was won by an officer on the U.S.S. Black Hawk.

The Champions was won by Christmas Morn (ridden by Mr. Villers). Sandsnipe (Mrs. Railtor) was second and Survivor (Mr. Swaney) third.

TUCHUN IS ASKED TO RESCIND ORDER OF MORATORIUM

(Independent News Service)

Kiukiang, Sept. 17.—The Chamber of Commerce here has telegraphed Governor Tsai Chen-hsun of Nanchang requesting him not to order moratorium on the bank notes issued by government banks in Kiukiang. The order of moratorium ordered at Nanchang recently by Governor Tsai has caused unusual panic in Kiukiang, and the notes of several reputable banks are discounted by some 20 percent in Kiukiang. The Kiukiang merchants state that in their dealings with foreign firms and Customs they require a quantity of silver in the market.

Rumors are current that Governor Tsai may resign his post although he has been advised by Marshal Wu Pei-fu not to do so. While nothing definite has been heard of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's propagated anti-North expedition via Kiangsi, people are inclined to believe that peace in Kiangsi may be upset by the war.

Reservations Made By Britain On Navy At Discussion Of Protocol

Arthur Henderson Insists On Retention Of Entire Liberty Of Action Regarding Use Of British Fleet

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 23.—The draft arbitration protocol was discussed by Armaments Committee of the League of Nations yesterday evening, when Mr. Arthur Henderson (Britain) made important reservations as regards the use of the British Fleet, which, he declared, must retain entire liberty of action.

Mr. Henderson said that the British Government were of the opinion that it was inconceivable that the British Empire would make war against the Covenant or against the protocol. Therefore they only envisaged the case in which the Empire would be engaged in warlike operations on behalf of the Covenant with the approval of the League. The Government were sure that in such a case it would be necessary and desirable, in the general interest as well as Britain's particular interest, that the British fleet should be able to operate with the freedom required to secure the rapid success and termination of the sanctions.

The British Government therefore proposed the reservation that disputes, arising from a warlike operation undertaken by the British Empire to support the League, should not be referred to the Permanent Court for settlement. The reservation did not appear to limit in any way the value of what the League was doing. Nobody desired that the Permanent Court should become a body controlling military operations, and therefore the British Government believed in safeguarding the liberty of action of the British Fleet, which, above all, must be safeguarded. They were not acting contrary to the general interests of the nations of the world.

Dr. Benes, reporting on the discussions of the sub-committee, declared that the protocol did not overstep the frame of the Covenant in the matter of sanctions. The signatories of the protocol undertook nothing new in that connection though their obligations would become more precise and more efficacious.

The agreement reached by the sub-committee had resulted in the elaboration of a system leading to the goal of destruction of war. Their responsibility was grave but in spite of difficulties he hoped that the discussions of the Third Committee and, afterwards, of the Assembly and, finally, the acts of the Governments, when it came to the question of signatures, would not cause disappointment to the millions of human beings who were looking to Geneva with one and only one word—Peace—on their lips.

The discussion was then adjourned.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 22.—The provisional text of the arbitration and disarmament protocol, which is subject to modification, has been published.

Article I amends Article XII of the Covenant of the League of Nations. It forbids a member of the League to engage in warfare with another member, excepting in the case of resistance of acts of aggression, or when acting with the consent of the League.

Article V defines an aggressor as a country refusing to submit a dispute to pacific settlement, or to conform with a judicial ruling, an arbitral award or the unanimous decision of the Council.

The Hague Court will be the arbitrator when international law is involved, while upon the Council devolves the responsibility of deciding whether an act of war is illegally committed and of applying appropriate sanctions.

Another article, which is not numbered, authorises an invitation to be issued to a non-member nation to submit to the provisions of the protocol when engaged in a dispute with a signatory of the protocol.

The question of the economic and financial sanctions to be inflicted on the wrong-doer shall, under Article VII, be decided by the economic and financial organisations of the League.

Article VIII requires signatories to give the Council in advance undertakings regarding the extent of military, naval and air forces that they are able to bring into action immediately, in order to enforce the provisions of the protocol.

While signatories may provide the whole or any part of their military, naval and air forces to assist a victim of aggression all the costs of the operations shall be imposed on the aggressor.

Unless the majority of the permanent members of the Council and ten other members ratify the protocol by May 1, 1925, invitations to the disarmament conference shall be cancelled.

The protocol will not take effect until the disarmament scheme is adopted. In the meantime, the Council will draft a program for disarmament, which shall be communicated to the Powers at least two months before the conference meets. The protocol will also lapse if the conference disarmament scheme is not carried out within a period to be fixed by the conference, while any member of the conference not conforming with the disarmament scheme within the time limit will be excluded from the benefits of the protocol.

The appendix stipulates that differences with regard to the protocol shall be submitted to the International Court of Justice.

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Sept. 22.—The assembly continued to examine the reports of the various committees according to the order of the day. A hearing was given to the proposal of the Swedish delegation relative to the development of international law.

The Third Committee occupied itself with the project concerning security and disarmament, and formed itself into a pleniary conference in order to examine the text prepared by the special sub-committee.

With regard to the question of Mosul Great Britain rejects the idea of a plebiscite and favors the nomination of a committee of experts. Turkey however insists on the plebiscite.

(French Wireless Through Reuter)

Paris, Sept. 22.—M. Rene Renoult, the Minister of Justice, delivered a speech at Hyeres explaining the policy of the Government which tends to the establishment of a definite peace with the aid of the League of Nations, but until this moment the military forces of the Republic must be maintained intact, as well as the alliances and ententes, which are vital necessities.

'Hell Maria' Dawes' Pipe Proves Genuine Companion

Chicago, August 21.—There is a possibility—nay, a probability—that if certain political events shape themselves correctly, the distinguished monogram, G. O. P., won't mean what it usually does at all; it will mean the Grand Old Pipe of Vice-President Charles Gate Dawes.

To get the psychology of the author of "Hell Maria" toward his inseparable companion, you have to think of the pipe not as a mere accessory to bodily comfort, but as a fount of inspiration, a confrere, a collaborator. General Dawes's pipe is his pal.

Few pipes have so individual a personality, and this one, incidentally, is an all American product, made in Chicago. It really is an upside down pipe, at least it looks that way to the observer. There is a highly scientific reason or that however, the chief reason that General Dawes is so fond of the pipe.

It was more than a year ago that Charles H. Lyon, long an admirer of General Dawes, noticed a picture of the general in a weekly magazine, smoking an ordinary pipe. Mr. Lyon sat down and penned this letter:

"I see you use a sap-sucker. I am taking the liberty of sending you under separate cover a mechanically correct tobacco smoker. If you like it send me a check for $3. If you don't, send it back, explaining why."

The answer was an order from General Dawes for a dozen of the pipes, with a check for $39, the extra $3 being for the sample. With the order was a letter. One characteristic sentence read:

"It's a damned good pipe."

So good does the general consider it that since that day he has bought more than five hundred pipes. He buys them in lots of three dozen to give away to his friends. He presented one to Marshal Foch.

"I'll never smoke any other kind," remarked the famous French soldier after his first "puff."

When General Dawes went to Europe to perfect the plan for German reparations he took three dozen of the pipes with him. The day after his arrival in Paris he sent for three dozen more.

Mr. Lyon is 63 years old, has lived in Chicago all of his life, and never has met General Dawes. He knows him only as a customer. When he learned of the fame that had been thrust upon his pipe he displayed no elation. Somebody suggested he name it the Dawes pipe. He scorned the suggestion.

"I've made a competence in the realty business," he said. "This pipe to me is simply an avocation. As a smoker I got interested in pipes. I never was able to get one that satisfied me, so I began figuring out one that would be mechanically perfect.

"I hit upon this idea about three years ago. You will observe that all pipes have the opening to the stem at the bottom of the bowl and thus draw all the smudge up through the stem, which is very distasteful to the smoker. For a long time I experimented and tried out various models and designs. I even hired a toolmaker at $50 a week and spent $1,400 for machinery.

"Finally I hit upon the right design. I perfected the pipe that General Dawes is smoking with a machine I made myself. I sold the $1,400 worth of machinery to a junk man the other day for 50 cents."

Since the spotlight was turned upon the pipe, through General Dawes, Mr. Lyon has been swamped with orders. They are still on his desk. He sells the pipe to whomever he chooses. Even if General Dawes is elected vice-president on the Republican ticket Mr. Lyon won't change the name of his pipe. He won't capitalise its merits, he says.

"The name of Lyon is every bit as good as Dawes," he says, proudly. "I haven't even met General Dawes and I don't intend to run after him. I'll vote for him, because he is a Republican like I am, and he knows a good thing when he sees one."

Chinese Government Railways
Kiaochow Tsinan Line

The public is hereby informed that it is the policy of the Railway to purchase railway materials and supplies of the best quality at the lowest price. If merchants wish to transact business with this Railway, they are advised to offer goods of high quality and quote reasonable prices. Under no circumstances shall special gifts or rebates be given to the Railway purchasing agent or other agents of this Railway and no secret understandings shall be tolerated.

Ever since I took office as Managing Director, I have been informed of the above-mentioned practices adopted by different merchants in soliciting the business of this Railway. I really detest such business methods and have therefore put the matter under thorough investigation.

Recently I was greatly surprised to receive several letters from a certain company promising me a certain percentage taken out of their net profit as a gift if we gave them our orders. I have come to the conclusion that the rumour of offering an illegal commission to the staff of our Materials Department is not without foundation. it was really demoralising for this latter company to contemplate bribery under the disguise of such high-sounding terms as rebates and gifts, instead of doing business with us honestly.

We all know that rebates or gifts are nothing but another form of bribery. Morally, it lowers one's character and legally, both the giver and the receiver should be put under the penalty of the Law. During my administration of this Railway, I shall deadly fight against such dishonesty as bitter enemy and shall see that this virgin field not to be sowed with those undesirable seeds. Therefore let it be known to all whom it may concern that any merchant doing business with this Railway shall hereafter follow the proper course of business transaction and shall enter fair competition with other business men. On no account shall dishonest methods be tolerated which, I believe, will have an effect in the preservation of merchants' good name.

Should bribery or cases of a like nature be discovered, the Railway employee or employees who received such gifts, irrespective of the amount, shall be dismissed immediately and punished accordingly. The name of the bribing firm, irrespective of its nationality, shall be made known to the public through the publicity of the newspapers and such a company shall be permanently deprived of the privilege of submitting tenders to the Railway. I earnestly hope that this will be clearly understood.

Christening Railroad Trains A Popular Success

For many years after the first railway lines were flung across the United States the trains that ran on them were referred to by numbers. Not only the men in railroad service used numbers but the oldest inhabitants of the village and the youngsters that played in the alley took pride in being able to tell the number of every train on the road. The morning train which sped through the town was No. 31. The heavy Western express that stopped at the junction to take water was No. 29. The 5:43 was No. 14, and No. 56 swung through the town in the night, its headlight flashing and its string of cars rumbling on behind. This calling of the trains by number had its fascination. It gave outsiders a feeling of familitarity with the whole romantic business of railroading. It meant more to them than being able to name the Presidents of the United States or to tell who discovered America.

This popular reference to train numbers continued until at some particular time in the hazy past, when people began to use their imagination and gave each train a descriptive name. "No. 56" become the "Midnight Flier." "The Morning Mail" took the place of "No. 37," and "No. 29" was referred to as the "Western Limited." The train numbers still continued to appear on railway schedules, and the crews referred to their trains by numbers, but the general public gradually forsook them for the more colorful, more suggestive names. This tendency has increased of late, until today there is scarcely a transcontinental train which does not have a picturesque name or a railroad that has not christened several of its crack expresses.

Just where and when and why the first American passenger train was named is shrouded in mystery. Perhaps the thrill of seeing the train come in, a thrill which still runs up and down the spinal column of many a Western town, led away from the mathematical precision of the past to the imaginative names of the present. Railroad officials welcomed the change, for they were for the most part attracted to the railroad business by the fascination of it. It is easy to concsive of them sitting back and trying to think up names for "old 37" and "good old 56." Engines were named before trains. The old wood-burners were chugging up hill and sliding down dale trying to keep on the rails before there were any trains worth naming. The primitive cognomens painted on the sides of locomotives are proof conclusive that they date far back. One of them was the "Rocket." Then there was the "Comet," the "Spitfire," the "Ant," and the "Antelope." Their names were very probably suggested by their antics when in action. Some of the early locomotives were named after the men who ran them and had their names painted on their sides. This practice is still in force on a number of roads and has recently been revived on several others.

Today the naming of trains is quite a modern process and one which has become definitely established. It is true that veteran railroaders still work the road by using numbers for most trains, but the traveling public knows them only by their names and the roads over which they run. References are made to them in business correspondence and appointments are made by the use of their names. A man going to Chicago wires his office there: "Will arrive Twentieth Century Friday." In the old days his wire read: "Will arrive Friday on train due Chicago 12:20 p.m." The Chicago office would then have to go scurrying through half a dozen timetables to see which road he was coming on, at which station he would land, and might have to go back to the telegraph office to ask if the message should not have read 11:20 a.m. instead of 12:20 p.m. Now it is simple. The Twentieth Century Limited is the Twentieth Century Limited, and that is all there is to it. If he is going to the Coast on the Northern Pacific he will wire his friends at a town en route to be on the station platform as the North Coast Limited goes through. If he is going west on the Great Northern or wants to visit Glacier National Park and a friend of his is going at the same time, they will arrange to leave St. Paul on the Oriental Limited.

EVERYBODY LIKES IT

The naming of trains has won universal approval. The man on the road likes it because he can refer to a particular train and convey all necessary information about leaving and arriving times and stations and terminals simply by giving its name. The Broadway Limited leaves from the same station every day, arrives at the same one every day, and the mere mention of its name tells one's friends all about his comings and goings. The public likes this business of naming trains because it is convenient. The railroad officials like it because it gets people in the habit of referring to their trains. The train crews like it, in spite of the fact that they officially work by numbers, because there is a good bit more of a swagger in puling the throttle of the Twentieth Century Limited or the Black Diamond Express than there is to being known merely as the engineman of No. 10 or No. 26.

Some of the railroads still adhere to the practice of tacking the words "limited," or "flier," or "express" on the end of every train name they bestow. For example, the crack trains of the Great Northern are the Oriental Limited, the Glacier Park Limited, the Great Northern Express, the Southeast Express and the Red river Limited. The Northern Pacific's include the North Coast Limited, the Pacific-Atlantic Express and the Puget Sound-Mississippi Valley Limited. The Canadian Pacific has the Vancouver Express, the Toronto Express and the South-Pacific Express and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western has the Lackawanna Limited and the Chicago Limited.

Others, however, have departed from this rather conventional form of train designation. The Santa Fe, which has always succeeded in making the other end of the journey more attractive than the one at which you may happen to be, has the Navajo, the Scout and the Missionary; the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has the Olympian and the Columbian; the Pennsylvania has the St. Louisan, the Clevelander, the Anthracite and the Mountaineer; the Baltimore & Ohio has the Washingtonian and the Philadelphian; and the New York Central Lines have the Mohawk, the Westerner, the Wolverine, the Buffalonian and the Beaver. An interesting train name on the New York Central is delightfully reminiscent of the old days. It is very frankly, "Number Forty-one."

Each of the train names is, of course, in some way descriptive of the train to which it belongs. It may contain the name of the town toward which the train is headed; it may be the direction east or west or north or south; it may be the river valley it follows, or some attribute of the train itself or of the country through which it passes. The Navajo, the Scout and the Missionary of the Santa Fe call up the life of the plains; the Boardwalk Flyer of the Reading System is the fastest regularly scheduled train in the world; the Mohawk of the New York Central traverses the red men's campfire grounds, and the Schuylkill of the Pennsylvania follows the river valley of that name.

WAGE COST IS HIGHEST IN U.S. SHIPS

Payrolls Average 50 Per Cent, Above Those Of Great Britain

New York, Aug. 20.—Wage costs of American ships in the North Atlantic trade are 50 per cent greater than those of British ships in the same trade, according to an analysis of ship wages prepared by the committee on national shipping policies of the American Steamship Owners' Association in connection with its investigaton of comparative costs of operation and construction of [illegible] and foreign ships, the results of which are to be embodied in a report to be submitted to Congress when it reconvenes in December. This report is intended for the information of Congress in connection with the recommendations which President Coolidge is expected to present for promoting the development of the merchant marine in the overseas trade.

The wage analysis consists of a comparison of the wages, paid to officer's and men on a British steamer of 5,500 gross tons in the North Atlantic trade, together with a statement of wages paid to officers and men on a privately owned American ships and on a Shipping Board ship of like character and tonnage. All three vessels have white crews. The comparison demonstrates that difference in the wage cost of operation in the case of ships of this largely employed type and tonnage is in the neighborhood of $1,000 per month per ship against the American vessels, despite the fact that the latter being oil burners, had a considerable advantage in fireroom wages as compared with the British coal burner.

The comparative wage costs of the three vessels are as follows:

FINER SHIPS MAY COME IN WAKE OF DIESEL ENGINES

Transition To Internal Combustion Engine Is Cause Of Rivalry

Finer ships may result from the transition from steam to internal combustion engines and modifications of present tonnage laws also may be found necessary, according to a British naval expert writing in a recent issue of the Liverpool "Journal of Commerce." He also forecasts great improvements in steam engines as a result of the Diesel competition.

"One feature of the internal combustion engine which has probably been responsible for most of the eulogistic observation," he writes, "is the low consumption and therefore, economy of fuel. But this is a relative matter. There is not going to be much advantage if the consumption of oil is one-third that of coal and the price three times as great.

"After all, the largest Dissel engines under construction at present can deliver only about 13,500 h. p. per shaft, whereas the steam engines on service have delivered 36,000 h. p. per shaft, and even the largest Diesel engines projected can deliver only about 16,000 h. p. per shaft. Hence in the sphere of very large powers the steam engine has not yet even been challenged, and the conflict is, therefore, confined to machinery for low-powered and intermediate type ships.

INFLUENCE ON HULL

"Recent papers and discussions in connection with internal combustion engines have focussed much attention on the engine ipso facto, and comparatively little on the design of the hull. There is ship, but if this engine is to be empoyed in its fullest and most economical capacity, more care than hitherto will be necessary in the design of the hull. There is the same resilience in the Diesel as in the steam engine, and there will probably have to be bigger margins between trial and sea performances.

"In other words, an era of finer ships may be inaugurated. At all events, it is to be hoped, in the interests of shipowners, that there will be more co-ordination between hull and machinery than there was in the transition period of sail to steam.

TONNAGE PROBLEM

"Leaving aside the larger issues affecting design, there is a number of more obvious points which arise in assessing the relative merits of the two types of machinery, and which are entirely within the province of the naval architect.

"Then there is the very important question of tonnage. The whole of the modern tonnage laws have been framed on the steam engine, and considerable modification may be necessary if equivalent concessions are to be made in the gross tonnage for Diesel engine spaces.

"Then there is the very important point which will have far-reaching effects—namely, stability. The largepowered Diesel engine has a very much higher center of gravity than the steam engine of similar power—the difference may be almost as much as 10 feet.

BROADER BEAM FOR STABILITY

"Such a difference demands an appreciable increase in beam if the Diesel ship is to have the same standard of stability as the similar-sized steam-engined ship. In fact the whole problem of stability in Diesel ships requires reconsideration, not only because of the high machinery center of gravity, but also due to the absence of coal and its ballasting effect, all tending to move the center of gravity upwards.

"In intermediate passenger ships the effect of this would be to measure the addition to beam not in inches, but in feet, and, therefore, considerably augment the first cost."

STEEL INDUSTRY STILL FAR FROM EIGHT-HOUR DAY

No One Wants, However, To Return To Twelve-Hour System

New York, Aug. 16.—The steel industry has by no means gone to an eight-hour day and a six-day week, according to a report prepared by Miss S. Adele Shaw and published yesterday by the Cabot fund. However, the partial elimination of the twelve-hour day has brought results so satisfactory that neither manufacturers nor workmen would consider a return to the former system, the report adds.

A large proportion of the men engaged on the basic steel processes still work more than ten hours a day, Miss Shaw finds, while the eight-hour men generally work seven days a week. In May there were some independent companies that still had failed to do away with the twelve-hour shift.

INDIRECT BENEFITS CUT COST

The Cabot Fund has financed numerous researches in industrial problems, notably that of Professor H. B. Drury, in 1920, into the twelve-hour day situation in the steel industry. Because of shorter work day, the report estimates the cost of reduced hours will prove much less than $35,000,000 a year, the figure set by the United States Steel Corporation.

"More than one company is operating its blast furnaces three shifts with no increase in the number of men over the two-shift operation," the report finds. "Testimony is overwhelming to the effect that the movement toward shorter hours has had a beneficial effect on production."

Some of these consequences are listed under the head of social effects, through added leisure for the workmen. The steel towns are said to be normal in appearance, with less tension and a better spirit among employees. A serious problem has been created, however, through the influx of negroes and of Mexicans to do the unskilled work.

On blast furnaces, during the period from January 16 to 31, the Federal Department of Labor is reported to have found that 8 per cent of the men worked forty-eight hours a week or less; 6 per cent worked eighty-four hours, and 32 per cent worked sixty hours. In the open hearth departments only 4 per cent work forty-eight hours or less, while in the Bessemer Converters it was found that more than half the men are on a forty-eight-hour basis.

In rolling mills, where ten-hour shifts replaced the twelve-hour shift, with payment on a tonnage basis, there has been no increase in the number of employees. That is, the same output is obtained from twenty hours of work as was formerly obtained from twenty-four hours. The added working force required for the blast furnaces and open hearth department was found to be only 12½ percent.

A statement, for the most part corroborating the findings in the Cabot Fund report, was made public yesterday by "Iron Age," the trade journal, to the effect that independent companies had not been as successful in ending the twelve-hour-day as the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries. The journal agreed also that relations between companies and the men had been improved substantially through he reduced hours.

Financial Times Justifies Rubber Restriction Scheme

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 22.—Claiming that the rubber export restrictions scheme in Malaya and Ceylon has amply justified itself, the Financial Times says that the persistent campaign to wreck restriction in the beginning must be regarded with something more than mere suspicion; as certain large American consumers are known to be desirous of acquiring a substantial stake in the rubber production of British Malaya, Ceylon and elsewhere. They are aware that if rubber can be brought well below one shilling large areas will inevitably fall into their hands at practically their own price. This can only be achieved by wrecking restriction but there is not the ghost of a chance of this childishly transparent campaign succeeding.

Marx Favors German Membership In The League Of Nations

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Sept. 22.—Speaking at a party meeting at Radolfzell in Baden, Chancellor Marx said it should be understood and agreed that Germany maintaining her honor and recognised as a great Power, should apply for admission to the League of Nations, which ought to leave her freedom and be just to her justifiable claims. They ought not to let slip any opportunity to achieve this end. He did not yet know whether the Cabinet would come to a decision on Tuesday, but he thought that at the present time the factors making for such a course had the upper hand.

C. C. Wu Says Arms Will Be Returned To Canton Volunteers

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Sept 20.—Replying to an enquiry, Mr. C. C. Wu states: "The arms will be returned to the Merchant Volunteers when their reorganisation under Government regulations is completed. The continued absence of the gunboat Wing-fung has no connection with the above matter. The vessel is on an entirely different mission on the south coast. An explanation has been requested from Belgium regarding the export of the arms on the steamer Hav from Antwerp."

Dr. Hawkling Yen Resigns; Succeeded By Wang Sung-yu

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 17.—The official report of the Cabinet meeting this morning says that the resignation was accepted of Dr. Hawkling Yen, who will be succeeded as Vice-Minister of Agriculture and Commerce by Mr. Wang Sung-yu. It was also resolved to appoint Mr. Hsueh Tu-pi (Vice-Minister of Justice) Vice-Minister of the Interior.

Russo-Japanese Parley Adjourned

What's Changing Us?

What will History call this present age? It was the printing press (wasn't it?), that changed our conditions of Life.

But the printing-press did it great work at a price. It definitely affected the eyesight of the race. This present era may well be called the Age of Eyestrain.

At first man's average range of vision was 40 feet and over. Then to read the first big black letters it was occasionally pulled in to arm's length. Today small type taxes our eyes endlessly at an average range of only 14 inches.

But science has kept pace with this growth of pointing, finding measures for the relief of eyes. For what is more important to happiness and success than efficient eyesight? Fancied ability to see is not a test of vision. Eyestrain, headache, nervousness, overtaxed eye-muscles, bloodshot eyes and other discomforts. With glasses you are protected—your eyes properly adjusted, nervestrain relieved. A complete eye-examination by the O.I.C. is the one way to be sure.

The War Has Now Been In Progress For Three Weeks

IT was approximately three weeks ago that the first shot was fired in the present civil war in China. At that time we were told that it was only the intention of General Chi Hsieh-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsu, to liberate the Shanghai area from the rule of Chekiang Province and that he expected to accomplish this in a couple of days, after which the unification of China would proceed apace.

Well, it did not work out in exactly that way. General Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang Province apparently was prepared for the advance of the Nanking General and his forces, and now, after three weeks, neither side has been able to win a victory and in the meantime the war has spread from Manchuria to Canton and it would be a daring prophet indeed who would forecast the outcome now.

Meanwhile several interesting things have happened. General Chi Hsieh-yuan soon found himself unable to stand up against the forces of Chekiang unassisted and was forced to appeal to General Wu Pei-fu of Loyang for assistance. General Wu responded, and reports from Nanking for several days told of the arrival of troops from Anhwei and Honan by boat down the river and of forces from Peking and Shantung down the Tientsin-Pukow Railway from the North. In addition to the transfer of men and munitions, the rolling stock of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway was actually transferred across the river on junks and used on the Shanghai-Nanking line to replace cars and locomotives detained in Shanghai by the Chekiang forces.

Then came the news of Chang Tso-lin's decision to come to the rescue of Chekiang and help in the overturn of the Peking Government. The mails and telegraph lines of the land have been filled with declarations and proclamations all taking a very high patriotic tone, giving reason for taking up arms at this time, but regardless of the truth or fiction of the public statements, the facts are that a general war in the form of a checkerboard game is on. General Wu Pei-fu has ceased sending reinforcements to Kiangsu and is now bending every effort to place 200,000 men in the field against the Mukden warlord. Reports regarding the actual results of the first brush are lacking, but that serious fighting involving the use of airplanes, armored cars and about everything else, is in progress, is plainly evident.

Down in Canton the news of the Kiangsu-Chekiang struggle brought further complications in an already mixed situation. Dr. Sun Yat-sen announced a new Northern expedition and at present is supposed to be on the northern borders of Kwangtung Province with a force of 10,000 men getting ready for an attack on Fukien. What his departure from Canton has produced in that city no one knows, but late reports have it that General Chen Chiung-ming, Dr. Sun's rival, is now moving on Canton with the idea of re-establishing himself in the city.

And then we come to the situation in Chekiang province itself. Suddenly last week General Lu Yung-hsiang, for many years the military ruler of that area, transferred his base to Shanghai, the reason being the deflection of two divisions of his Chekiang troops. According to report, these so-called disloyal troops have joined forces with General Sun Chuan-faung, the Northern commander in Fukien Province, and together they are reported to be marching on Hangchow with the intention of taking control. When General Lu was forced to give up Hangchow, he naturally could no longer continue his advance against Kiangsu on the front west of Lake Taiho in the neighborhood of the town of Ishing, so this sector was given up and the Chekiang troops there are now, according to report, coming to Shanghai to join General Lu here.

General Lu Yung-hsiang is now apparently well established in Shanghai with a triangular stretch of territory under his control reaching from Kashing on the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway on the south to Huangtu on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway to the north and then to the town of Liuho about twenty-five miles from Shanghai on the Yangtsze River. Inside of this territory General Lu probably has about 40,000 troops, and in addition to the wealthy metropolis of Shanghai to draw upon for supplies, he has a well-equipped arsenal, the second largest in the country, working twenty-four hour shifts in the production of munitions and supplies. A foreigner recently in discussing General Lu's position likened him to the old Chinese proverb referring to the rat in the china-closet. In other words, great care must be exercised, otherwise much valuable porcelain may be broken in dislodging him. Just what General Lu's intentions are no one can say. He has announced his intention to continue the fight until Nanking is captured and the "illegal" Government in Peking is overturned. General Chang Tso-lin concurs in this declaration and announces his intention of putting in the Presidency General Tuan Chi-jui, the old Anfu leader who ruled in Peking durig the greater period of the World War.

Just how and when it all is to end, no one can say, but the longer it lasts, the more disastrous it is likely to be for the Chihli Party, the most important and hopeful group in the country, for the reason that portions of this territory are likely to break off and either become independent or join up with the enemy. Business is paralysed except in the necessities and all of the foreign Concessions in the Republic are filled to overflowing with refugees. Since the Peking Government at the beginning of the present struggle was already in technical or actual default upon obligations to the extent of approximately $800,000,000, it does not require much imagination to forecast the situation when the present war ends.

From the standpoint of the Powers, they are still adhering to their policy of neutrality, which is the only policy possible for them to adopt. What the Powers will do when the war finally ends is still unknown, but that an opportunity will be presented for constructive action, goes without saying.

The Anglo-Russian Agreement

THE attack which has been opened upon the Anglo-Russian Treaty by the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, and emphasised by Viscount Grey at Edinburgh, is in fact but a continuation of the opposition which the treaty aroused when it was introduced into the House of Commons at the close of the last session for the purposes of ratification. Opposition comes from both the parties which have, on occasion, supported or opposed the Labor Government, and there is a likelihood that the two may eventually come together for the defeat of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald on this important matter. Since the commencement of the Anglo-Russian negotiations in April of this year, the Russian delegates have striven for two objects—the British Government's guarantee of a Russian loan, and the privilege of diplomatic immunity for Russian trade delegations. In return, the Russian representatives promised that the Russian Government would not ordinarily sequestrate foreign property in Russia, and that Soviet propaganda should cease in the British Dominions. Such a treaty, so far as the concessions made by the Russian delegation is concerned, is not worth the paper it is written on. That is not so wild a statement as would at first appear, for if we consider what is provided in the Russian Constitution as adopted in 1918, and subsequently amended at annual congresses of the All Russia Congress of Soviets, it is apparent that an agreement which provides that the Russian Government will not ordinarily sequestrate private property is ultra vires that Constitution. In fact, it provides for the sequestration of all private property, whether Russian or foreign. So far as the question of propaganda is concerned, it is now known that this has not been stopped and that as an excuse the Soviet Government has pleaded that this is the work of a political party over which it has no control, while in fact the work is being done by the Politikbureau, a department of the Government, which may, should it so decide to do, repudiate the treaty. The Politikbureau is, in fact, the real executive of the Union of Soviet and Socialist Governments.

For these promises, which, in fact, may in their totality amount to nothing, the Russian Government desires British guarantee for a Russian loan, and political immunity for Russian trade delegations. These latter have been proved by Germany to have been carrying on a dual role. While it is true that they did foster Russo-German trade, there is indisputable evidence that they were also acting as political agents for the Politikbureau, working for the transformation of the Reich into a communist state. As for the loan, while there is little doubt that, with a British guarantee behind it, it would succeed, it is open to doubt whether in fact the Russian Government has given anything sufficiently proportionate in return for the accommodation it would thus receive.

Can there be, therefore, anything but justification for the descriptions given the document by various speakers in the House of Commons last August? Sir Robert Horne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, described it as an illusion. Mr. Lloyd George bluntly called it a "fake," and, in extending that term last Thursday, Viscount Grey characterised it as "a great blot and a great mistake of British foreign policy." Mr. Clynes advances the argument in favor of the agreement not one iota by his suggestion that opposition to the loan was solely inspired by political hostility to the Russian Government, and it does not help matters that the British Labor Government has repeatedly recorded its detestation of the indefensible deeds of Russia. If the agreement does, in fact, violate Russia's Constitution, if it can be repudiated by the executive department of the Soviet Government, the document per se must be a bad one which it would be idle to take any further. If such be the case—and it certainly appears to be the contention of the Opposition—Mr. Macdonald will have a bad time of it when the matter again comes before the House of Commons, for with Liberal and Conservative combination against the agreement, there is not much chance of its being ratified. It has yet to be seen whether these two parties will combine to defeat the Government on this issue, but should they do so they will inflict a reverse in the face of which it would be impossible for the Labor Party to continue in office.

JUSTICE

There are many earnest souls occupied in trying to do people good.

There are nine million societies, more or less, organized to improve and to ameliorate.

There are preachers, missionaries, evangelists, reformers, exhorters, viewers-with-pride, and pointers-with-alarm without number wrastling with sinners.

It seems ungracious to say a word to any enthusiastic person who is engaged in so laudable an enterprise as that of rescuing the perishing, feeding the hungry, and healing the sick.

And yet, when you take time to think right through to the bottom of things, you must come to the conclusion that there is but one real, radical and effective way to help your fellow-men, and that is the way called justice.

If I want to redeem the world, I can come nearer my object, and do less harm, by being just toward myself and just toward everybody else, than by "doing good" to people.

The only untainted charity is justice.

Often our ostensible charities serve but to obscure and palliate great evils.

Conventional charity drops pennies in the beggar's cup, carries bread to the starving, distributes clothing to the naked. Real charity, which is justice, sets about removing the conditions that make beggary, starvation, and nakedness.

Conventional charity plays Lady Bountiful; justice tries to establish such laws as shall give employment to all so that they need no bounty.

Charity makes the Old Man of the Sea feed sugar-plums to the poor devil he is riding and choking; justice would make him get off his victim's back.

Conventional charity piously accepts things as they are, and helps the unfortunate; justice goes to the legislature and changes things.

Charity swats the fly; justice takes away the dung-heaps that breed flies.

Charity gives quinine in the malarial tropics; justice drains the swamps.

Charity sends surgeons and ambulances and trained nurses to the war; justice struggles to secure that internationalism that will prevent war.

Charity works among slum wrecks; justice dreams and plans that there be no more slums.

Charity scrapes the soil's surface; justice subsoils.

Charity is affected by symptoms; justice by causes.

Charity assumes evil institutions and customs to be a part of "Divine Providence," and tearfully works away at taking care of the wreckage; justice regards injustice everywhere, custom-buttressed and respectable or not, as the work of the devil, and vigorously attacks it.

Charity is timid and is always passing the collection-box; justice is unafraid and asks no alms, no patrons, no benevolent support.

"It is presumed," says Henry Seton Merriman, "that the majority of people are willing enough to seek the happiness of others; which desire leads the individual to interfere with his neighbor's affairs, while it burdens society with a thousand associations for the welfare of mankind or the raising of the masses."

The best part of the human race does not want help, nor favor, nor charity; it wants a square deal.

Charity is man's kindness.

Justice is God's.

PREMIER YEN

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—In the assumption of the Premiership in the Republic of China by Dr. W. W. Yen, there is reason for congratulation and rejoicing on the part of China. A few points may be briefly noted:

(1) The choice of Dr. Yen as Premier was made by President Tsao and has been ratified by Parliament. At this time of delicate management in the affairs of China, it is most desirable that there should be the prospect of harmonious action between the Presidency, the Cabinet and Parliament.

(2) For many years Dr. Yen has successfully dealt with the diplomatic relations between China and the great and small Powers and the Diplomatic Corps will surely show satisfaction at his appointment to the office of Premier.

(3) Both Dr. Yen and Dr. Koo are graduates of American Universities and will be able to work in happy accord as to the way to settle the many complicated issues that will necessarily arise in the period of internecine strife. This combination is most fortunate for China.

(4) As head of the Financial Commission, Dr. Yen has made himself familiar with the existing defects and has thought out some of the remedies to be applied. In the next few months the financial standing of the Central Government will be fully tested, and it is fortunate that Minister Wang Ko-ming has such a Premier with whom he may easily consult as to "ways and means" in time of war.

(5) At a time of conflict between the Central Government and a number of opposing forces, it shows laudable courage for Dr. Yen to assume the duties of Premier and to face growing criticism, and it is also a matter of rejoicing that China, on the resumption of peace relations and of unification, will have just such a man to take the lead in constructive measures of State.

(6) Dr. Yen has established a reputation for integrity of character amid a growing corruption, is straightforward in his expression of opinion and also quick to adapt himself to the sensible suggestions of others. He will command the respect of all factions, and herein China is to be congratulated.

GILBERT REID.

DRESS

The Sojourner in Paris Brings Back a Long Tunic Blouse to the Stay-at-home

Next best to going to Paris yourself is having someone go that you know well enough to ask to bring you some bit of French apparel. You may sincerely believe that American-made frocks and hats and wraps and accessories are quite as good as and more appropriate than those bought on the shores of the Seine. You may have high-flown theories about patronizing home industries. You may even be able to get imported things quite easily at some shop or other, and thus save yourself the trouble of sending over for them. And still—there really is a thrill in feeling that when your sister or cousin or aunt or daughter comes back from France next autumn her trunks will be a few ounces heavier because of some little thing she has brought you.

As the fashions are now, there is nothing that it is safer to get in this way than one of the new tunic blouses. A frock may, or may not, fit well enough even to make it possible to alter it to your proportions. But there is so little fit about a blouse nowadays that it is pretty sure to prove satisfactory.

Long lingerie blouses of organdie, batiste or lace are worn by French women as an accompaniment of the long-jacketed tailor suit. Sometimes they are worn with a belt and sometimes without. Then it is possible to make quite an interesting frock from any of them by wearing them over a short scant slip. This summer French women have shown a decided fondness for wearing light tunics over black or other dark-colored slips.

The sketch shows one of the new ecru batiste tunic blouses so much admired by American women in Paris this year. It is trimmed with ecru lace and open-work embroidery and tucked all over. With it is worn a large hat of ecru straw, with tiny worsted doll tables in bright colors placed across the crown in front.

Tunic blouse of ecru batiste, tucked and trimmed with lace and embroidery, worn over crepe de chine slip.

SMART LITTLE THINGS

To hold an ornate handkerchief there is a colorful silken cord and tassel with a crocheted ring through which to slip the handkerchief. This cord may be worn either around the neck or around the waist like a girdle. Sometimes the tassel on the cord is trimmed with rhinestones.

Scald remaining milk; add cornstarch mixture gradually; while stirring constantly, and let cook fifteen minutes. Beat whites of eggs until stiff, and then gradually, while beating constantly, add sugar and vanilla. Add to cooked mixture, and beat vigorously one minute. Turn into a mould, first dipped in cold water; chill, remove from mould, and serve.

More Truth Than Poetry

1920—JULIA

I love you, I love you! My trust
I know will be safe in your keeping;
Don't child me for crying—I must
But, dear, it's for joy that I'm weeping!
Ah, you are the prince of my dreams,
You have wakened my deepest affection;
How wonderful, darling, it seems
To claim your enduring protection.

JACK

The trust you have given to me
I'll keep as my dearest possession;
No other words ever can be
As sweet as your loving confession;
My constancy never shall swerve,
I never will yield to temptation,
And you in the future shall serve
As my one and sublime inspiration.

1924—JULIA

I've consulted my lawyer today,
And stated the facts to him clearly;
He says I can force you to pay,
But I don't want to soak you severely.
Let's try to arrange the affair
Without being noisy about it;
I told him I thought you'd be square;
He seemed for some reason to doubt it.

JACK

These lawyers are always too quick
To think that no man is worth trusting;
When I make a promise I stick,
Your lawyer's poor faith is disgusting.
I'll give you what's right; never mind,
But hurry and let us be parted;
Too bad that we both were so blind
And such fools at the time when we started.

Crippled by Corns? Use "Gets-It"

The only good corn is a dead corn. A few drops of "Gets-It" will quickly start any corn or callous on the way to "the happy hunting ground." "Gets-It" brings instant relief from all pain and hurting. One bottle contains enough "Gets-It" to remove a dozen corns hard or soft, old or new. Costs you nothing if it fails—but it doesn't fail. Let your druggist tell you why millions demand it. E. Lawrence & Co., Mfr., Chicago.

Turned down again! Reason,—only one arm. He finds it difficult to get a job because industrial efficiency demands that there be a complete man at every machine. Yet the successful applicant is frequently much less fitted for his work than the one-armed man, for employment managers are hiring "one-eyed" workers without knowing it. In America there are twenty-five million people who don't realize that they need glasses. Call them "one-eyed," for two eyes which do not see properly may be of no more use than one.

If you are an employer have your employees' eyes examined without delay.

If you are an employee and your employer has not done this have your eyes examined at once.

CASE OF UNSIGNED WILL CONTINUED IN U. S. COURT

Judge Adjourns Admission To Probate Of Draft Till Monday

An interesting point concerning a will was discussed yesterday in the United States Court for China, before Judge Milton D. Purdy, when Major C. P. Holcomb moved for the issuance of letters of administration of the estate of Dr. James Howell Pyke, deceased. The latter died at Chingwantao on May 29, 1924, leaving a draft will in his own handwriting, unsigned and undated.

Evidence was given by Mrs. Pyke, the widow, to the effect that she and deceased had been married for over fifty years and that some time prior to his death she found in a writing tablet at the house of her daughter, the draft will written by deceased. When she and her husband moved to Chingwantao she took the will with her, but did not speak to her husband on the matter as she felt some hesitancy over it. She identified the writing as that of her husband's and produced a passport bearing another specimen of his writing.

Mrs. F. R. Scott, daughter of the deceased, said her father had spoken to her about preparing a will, and she had given him a blank form which she had. He did not seem to care for that as not being exactly what he wanted. It must have been after that that he wrote the document produced.

Mr. F. R. Scott identified the writing of the deceased, as did all the other witnesses, and stated that he knew the deceased was working on his will and had asked witness to have it typed out, but he did not know the draft had been prepared, or witness would have got him to sign it.

Mr. W. A. Main identified the document as in deceased writing.

His Honor in continuing the case until next Monday, pointed out the difficult question as to whether this will should be admitted to probate or not, being unsigned and undated. The duty of the Court was to do the best for all concerned. If the will was admitted to probate it would mean that the entire estate would go to the widow. If not, there would have to be a distribution of the assets under statute, whereby the widow would get only one third, the rest being divided amongst the children.

Nanking Notes

Issued By Nanking Intelligence Committee

Nanking, Sept. 19.—The following comment on the general situation in the Nanking Consular District has kindly been furnished us by the American Consulate Office: "The city of Nanking and this district in general remain quiet. The recent absence of definite news of action has, however, seemingly given rise to much anxiety upon the part of some Chinese and the usual flood of rumors is abroad but this office sees no cause for alarm."

There are evidences of a pending strong offensive by the Kiangsu forces on the Huangtu sector. It is fairly reliably reported that there have been heavy purchases of empty oil drums in Nanking to be used in constructing pontoon bridges with which to cross some of the larger streams now separating the opposing forces.

Fighting goes on mainly at night at Anting. We were within easy hearing of the machine guns and rifles and shell fire, seeing the shell fall at a distance of perhaps three miles. Both sides seemed to be holding their own. It is rumored that Kiangsu is now prepared to make a strong offensive. Many wounded are being brought back. In accord with Chinese custom a serious attempt is being made to provide coffins for the dead. We found a number of Christians among the soldiers down there. The Army Y. M. C. A. has been given quarters and are beginning work. The Red Cross Committee was accorded every respect on all sides. We have to observe all the formalities of martial law.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1924

"General Wang Pu of Anhwei has telegraphed from Kwangteh saying that General Chang Hung-teh has broken through Chekiang's first line and has occupied the high land east of Ta Chieh Pai. Active fighting is now going on."

"Tupan Sun of Fukien telegraps that Generals Meng and Lu together attacked Kiang Shan and captured it after a whole day's battle."

Dr. Price sends us the following paragraphs:

"Early this morning Rev. Warren Strart accompanied by Rev. S. K. L. Riechelt and E. Marx with a quota of five Chinese colleagues left for Quinsan to supplement the American Red Cross forces now engaged in relief work there.

"Mr. Frank Price writes that he had been to Soochow and had been enabled to secure the desired launch which will much facilitate them in their work, and he was returning accompanied by several Soochow missionaries to the Quinsan front. He reports the Soochow hospitals full of wounded, Dr. Snell having performed 100 operations within a week."

Constabulary Chief Confers With Staff On Peace In Nantao

Colonel Lu Yung-chien, chief of the Woosung and Shanghai Constabulary, held a conference yesterday lasting one hour, with his subordinates, for the purpose of discussing the question of preserving peace and good order in this locality.

Yesterday drastic measures were still being adopted at various important places in Nantao. No pedestrians were allowed to walk in the streets regardless of whether they held passes issued by either the Sungkiang-Shanghai Military Governor or the Chief of the Woosung and Shanghai Constabulary.
